Peace Loving Pope Pius XI Passes Away At Vatican City Early Today

End Due Cardiac Asthma After a Long Illness

Body Be Taken To St. Peter's For Homage

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 10.—Pope Pius XI, "the Pope of Peace," 261st head of the church of Rome died today at dawn just five days after the 17th anniversary of his reign.

His frail body, wasted by illness and with features shrunken, was borne in the afternoon to the red-draped 15th Century Sistine chapel, where the new pontiff will be elected, to lie in state for the homage of dignitaries.

Tomorrow the body will be taken to St. Peter's cathedral where the first of nine funeral services will be held Sunday. Burial will be Feb. 15 in St. Peter's.

The death of the pontiff, nearly 82, marked an interregnum in the administration of the church which Engenio Cardinal Pacelli will fill as "Chamberlain of the Holy Roman Church" until a new Pope is elected.

The conclave of cardinals may convene Feb. 25, though it can be called as late as Feb. 28, to choose the successor to Pius XI. Three United States cardinals were expected to leave New York tomorrow to attend the assembly for the first time as a group.

The new Pope will be elected by a two-thirds majority of those of the sixty-two cardinals who attend the conclave.

The time of his coronation will depend on how quickly the balloting is ended.

From the dead Pope's hand Cardinal Pacelli took the fisherman's ring, symbol of papal authority. Its seal, in a new ring, will be given to the new Pope as a sign of his selection.

Pope Pius XI died just before the church bells of old Rome sounded morning Angelus.

Approaching his 82nd birthday anniversary on May 31, he had been ill since Tuesday of cardiac asthma which caused death, although he had weakened gradually in general health since a severe illness in December, 1936, and another attack, November 25, last year.

Dr. Aminta Milani, called from a sick bed, nodded that the end had come at 5:31 a. m., for the "Pope of Peace" on the fifth day of the 18th year since his election as head of the Catholic church.

During the administration of the last rites witnesses said they saw the Pope's lips move.

Some close to him thought they heard him say:

"Our last rites, like those of all mortals. Sister Therese of the infant Jesus, are near to us. God is merciful. May His will be done."

Saint Therese whom Pius canonized was the saint to whom he had entrusted his health.

Death came while the holy father was preparing to embark upon a new task—an extraordinary address tomorrow to all Italian bishops on the tenth anniversary of the latern accord with Italy—by which he became the first pope in 59 years to emerge from the Vatican walls.

He had been expected to deal with the status of the concordat.

The news was given officially to all Rome by the deep-throated "camponone," 11-ton master of the the great bell tower of St. Peter's which started tolling its requiem at 6:38 a. m. The bell sounded for 20 minutes.

At the order of Cardinal Selvaggiania, as the Pope's vicar in the Rome diocese, proclamations of death were nailed to the doors of the city's 400 churches.

Saddened By Strife

His last years were saddened by war between the peoples he loved in Spain, by troubles between the church and state in Germany, and by the racial measures of the Fascist Italian state.

Death was believed hastened by his determination to celebrate fittingly two proud anniversaries of his reign—that of the lateran treaty Saturday and the 17th of his coronation on Sunday.

Oxygen had been administered last evening after a severe attack during which the pontiff lapsed from consciousness for 30 minutes, but at midnight he was said to be resting easily.

A change was noticed soon after 4 a. m.

Dr. Filippo Rocchi, who had attended since Tuesday in the absence of Dr. Milani, noted that a pulse could hardly be felt and notified the papal secretary of state, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, that the end was near.

Gave Extreme Unction

Monsignor De Romanis, the pontiff's sacristan, administered extreme unction as cardinals, Dr. Milani, and other functionaries were summoned hastily.

Papal Chamberlain Regrets Pope Dies 'When We Need Him Most'

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, a Papal Chamberlain, said last night the death of Pope Pius came at a time "when we need him most."

"Along with people around the world," Smith said, "I hear with deep regret of the passing of our Holy Father, the Pope. He will go down in history as one of the world's truly great men. We are losing him at a time when we need him most."

Cardinals Of U. S. To Help Elect

For First Time To Have Voice Naming Pope

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 10.—(AP) American cardinals as a group will take part in the election of the next pope for the first time in the history of the Catholic church.

Pope Pius XI decreed the time elapsing after the death of the pope must be a minimum of 15 days, with three days of grace, or a maximum of 18 days, before the conclave to choose his successor begins.

The late James Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore took part in the election of Pius X, successor to Leo XIII, solely because he left Baltimore for Rome during Leo's illness.

The prolongation of the interval between the pontiff's death and the conclave is the result of a protest made by the dean of American cardinals, William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, following the death of Pope Benedict.

Pope Benedict died January 22, 1922, and Cardinal O'Connell took the first boat possible, The Wilson.

As he was on the train between Naples and Rome the two thirds vote of the conclave fell upon Cardinal Achille Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, who became Pope Pius XI.

The American prelate hastened to the Vatican. The conclave, as is the custom, was still in session, although the pope had been chosen. The cardinals still were locked in a portion of the Vatican.

The American prelate could not but express his disappointment at having arrived just too late to participate in the important election. This disappointment he expressed directly to the new pope.

Pope Pius told him he understood the situation. He said that the development of the new continent had made necessary the nomination of cardinals whom the rules of the conclave, thinking only of European prelates, had not had in mind.

On March 15, 1922, he issued

Is Killed When Truck He Was Driving Upset

CAMERON, Mo., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Floyd West, thirty-six years old, Winston, Mo., was killed last night when the truck he was driving overturned on an icy highway two miles north of here. He is survived by his wife and two children.

Coldest Morning of Winter

The temperature at 7 o'clock this morning was 1 degree above zero, the coldest morning of this winter, At noon it registered 12 degrees above zero.

There was .24 of an inch of rainfall.

Postpone Degree work

The degree work of the Knights of Columbus, followed by a banquet, to have been held in Marshall, Sunday, February 12, has been postponed because of the cold weather.

Frigid Blasts Reach Missouri

Temperature In a Drop Below The Zero Mark

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10—(AP)—After escaping one cold wave, Missouri was finally caught today in the throes of another frigid blast which sent temperatures tumbling to new lows for the season.

Maryville, one of the "cold spots" of the state and Brookfield reported 8 degrees below zero and sub-zero and near-zero temperatures were recorded at many parts of Missouri.

Rain preceded the drop in the mercury, but little snow accompanied the cold wave. Instead, there were strong winds.

At Greenville, in southeast Missouri, cyclonic winds wrecked or damaged virtually every business house, and many dwellings. The wind reached a velocity of 36 miles an hour in St. Louis.

In northwest Missouri icy highways accounted for at least one death — that of Floyd West of Winston near Cameron — and caused many minor accidents.

St. Joseph and Kirksville reported 5 below, Kansas City had 1 below, at Hannibal it was zero.

Yesterday's anticipated cold wave which most of Missouri escaped was to have sent the mercury down to zero at St. Louis.

South winds, however, bucked north winds and shot temperatures up here to 64 degrees at 9 o'clock last night. During the next 12 hours, however, they fell 50 degrees, and were still slipping on downward.

Central Missouri, including Jefferson City and Columbia, reported from 4 to 6 above zero this morning. To the south it was reported somewhat warmer, but the cold wave was expected to hit the southeast portion of the state by tonight.

Slowly rising temperatures are forecast for the north and west portions of Missouri tomorrow.

Highways Blocked

Snow, whipped by icy gales, blockaded highways, closed rural schools and delayed or halted railway traffic in the northwest and west today.

At least three deaths were attributed directly to the storm and subzero cold. A Montana prospector froze to death, a young California miner perished in the cold while hauling supplies and a 90-year-old crippled recluse died of exposure in Kansas.

Minnesota's secondary roads generally were blocked by drifts and a 30 to 40 mile blow was drifting roads almost as fast as ploys cut through.

Similar conditions were reported in South Dakota where Aberdeen had 20 below. Traffic on the Milwaukee railroad at Aberdeen was suspended.

Rain and sleet were reported from several points in Wisconsin.

In Chicago, a heavy summerlike shower that was accompanied by thunder and lightning last night was followed by high wind and cold. The storm last night raised the temperature to 53 degrees. Less than 12 hours later the mercury had dropped 44 degrees.

While Chester, Mont., had an unofficial 54 below, the cold moderated some along the north Pacific Coast as a new storm moved in. Subzero readings were taken in the mountains of Idaho, Oregon, Washington and California, Sierraville, Calif., having 25 below.

Pope Proclaimed Many New Cardinals In Late Years

The Papal Titles

(By The Associated Press)

Pius XI who passed away at Vatican City bore these titles:

His Holiness The Pope;
Bishop of Rome and Vicar of Jesus Christ.
Successor of St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles;
Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church;
Patriarch of the West;
Primate of Italy;
Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Roman Province;
Sovereign of the Temporal Dominions of the Holy Roman Church and Sovereign of Vatican City.

All except the last five words were attributes of the office when Pius was chosen for it in 1922 The final phrase was added in 1930 after the Lateran accords with Italy became accomplished facts.

The other titles stem from the historicity of the papacy. The word "pope" comes from the Latin "papa," childish name for "father." The next two refer to the descent of the papacy from St. Peter, the apostle of whom Christ said: "Upon this rock I will build my Church." Pius was 261st in line from Peter.

"Pontiff" traces back to ancient Rome. It signifies "bridge builder" because the civic duties of the high priests of pagan Rome included care of the bridges over the Tiber

"Patriarch of the West" goes back to the reign of Justinian (483-565) when the church was governed, under the supreme authority of the Byzantine emperor, by the five patriarchs of Rome, Constantinople, Alexandria, Antioch and Jerusalem. Islamism early wiped out the last three, leaving Constantinople in the east and Rome in the west. As western patriarch the bishop of Rome naturally was primate of Italy and metropolitan of the Roman province.

Temporal sovereignty traces from pre-Constantine days, but became concentrated in Italy in the 8th century. It existed there vicariously until September 20, 1870, when the House of Savoy made good its claim to sovereignty over all of Italy and occupied Rome. Pius X took sanctuary in the Vatican. Leo XIII, Pius X and Benedict XV stayed within its precincts throughout their reigns. It remained for Pius XI to break the habit.

Rail Finance Report Up To Committee

Claim Made Of Departure On Correctness

Was Made On Missouri Pacific

Wheeler Urges Need of Closer Supervison

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP) Railroad finance investigators reported to the senate today that Price, Waterhouse and Company, New York accounting firm, certified to stockholders of the bankrupt Missouri Pacific Railroad in 1934 a financial report that "departed from even minimum standards of correctness, accuracy and truth."

The report was one of a series by a special sub-committee of the senate interstate commerce committee headed by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont).

The accountants, the committee said, certified a 1934 Missouri Pacific trustee's report despite knowledge that $3,200,000 listed as a special deposit of the railroad company was non-existent. At the same time, the committee said, a report was made to a "privileged few" showing that the deposit had been stamped.

Chairman Wheeler said in a statement accompanying the report that the incident showed a need for general supervision of public accounting practices as well as a need for safeguard in the railroad field.

Wheeler said the committee would like to see the personnel of the bureau of accounts in the interstate commerce commission increased and would like the ICC to have the same access to the books of railroad subsidiaries and holding companies, banks, brokerage and investment banking firms and accounting firms that it now has to the books of the railroads themselves.

"Even where gross irregularities are discovered by certified public accounts," Wheeler said, "the accounts may be certified to the public without revelation of the gross irregularities discovered."

The committee reported Price, Waterhouse and Company, discovered the $3,200,000 was not on deposit with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, although listed in the company's books and a special deposit. The accountants had been employed by the bankruptcy trustee to audit the company's books and examine and certify the road's annual report to stockholders.

Were Not Informed

Despite the discovery, the committee added, the stockholders were not informed of the situation.

"As of the very date that stockholders were certified this grossly inaccurate information," the committee said, "the trustees and a few privileged insiders were told another story. It was a story composed of an ambiguous half-truth and a false entry. It did not suppress a material fact, nor did it mince words in stating the circumstance uncovered by the auditors' investigation of the Missouri Pacific books.

"It is difficult to see how such a remarkable contraction was permitted to occur in two documents bearing the certification of the same auditing firm under the same date.

"In fact that the shrdlu pup "The fact that the false report was the one that went to thousands of investors, while the true report was cloistered in a lower court in St. Louis and distributed only to a privileged few (after a mysterious delay during which attempts were made to change the document in other important respects) makes the circumstance especially questionable."

The committee said the information certified by the accountants became the basis for erroneous data in a number of financial and reference manuals.

"This failure on the part of an independent auditing firm to reveal to investors a vital discrepancy between a corporation's books and the true state of affairs actually discovered by the auditors through their investiga-

Weather Helps Expand Trade

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Good weather following a series of early February storms helped to expand the nation's retail trade during the past week and volume for the country as a whole averaged 2 to 7 per cent higher than in the like period last year. Dun and Bradstreet reported today in their weekly business review.

McKittrick Back To Crime Inquiry

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Returning to continue his investigation of St. Louis crime conditions, Attorney General Roy McKittrick said today he had three major cases ready for presentation to the grand jury and several more in formation.

The attorney general said his investigation in the next few days would center around alleged labor rackets here, mentioning a study also if the Service Car Drivers' Union.

It is understood McKittrick has asked Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller to permit him free access to the St. Louis grand jury.

McKittrick indicated he would look into old and new crimes to determine possible indictments, but declined to disclose those he had in mind.

Loyalists To Last Stand In Central Spain

Premier Juan Negrin Goes To Join Gen. Miaja

PERIGNANNA, France, Feb. 10.—Spanish insurgent forces completed the conquest of Catalonia today as government leaders took up a last stand in Central Spain.

A small column of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops reached Puigcerda, on the frontier, at 3:45 p. m. (9 a. m. CST) and raised their flag over the government's last border outpost.

Two hours earlier they had raised their colors at Port Bou, advancing their conquest of northeast Spain to easternmost Catalonia, and had driven remnants of the government army there across the frontier into France. The town was in ruins after having been blown up and set afire by the government forces.

Negrin To Alicante

Government Premier Juan Negrin, accompanied by some ministers, flew from Toulouse, France, to Alicante, Spain, avowedly to carry on resistance in the central zone, the one-fourth of Spain still in government possession.

They were en route to Valencia to join Jose Miaja, commander-in-chief of all government forces in Central Spain. Miaja declared neither he nor his general staff was negotiating peace with Franco.

The British cruiser Devonshire landed 450 government sympathizers from the island of Minorca at Marseille. There, Captain G. C. Muirhead-Gould, commander of the Devonshire, declared the insurgents took Minorca yesterday after an uprising by the government garrison and a heavy insurgent aerial bombardment.

The commander said the uprising began Tuesday shortl after negotiations for surrender of the island had begun between Spanish insurgent and government spokesmen aboard the Devonshire. He said an accord was reached Wednesday before the insurgent air raid but shortly thereafter Franco's forces had landed and taken over the island.

After the insurgents' double victory yesterday in reaching France's eastern Pyrenees frontier and taking the Mediterranean island of Minorca, the surrender of the Madrid-Valencia zone — the last territory left to the Spanish

Heads Women's Auxiliary In Episcopal Diocese

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10.—Mrs. E. L. Lasar of St. Louis is the new president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Diocese of Missouri.

Mrs. Irvin Mattrick of St. Louis is first vice-president.

District vice-presidents, elected at the auxiliary's fifty-eighth annual meeting here yesterday, are: Mrs. B. W. Lucas of Columbia; Mrs. W. L. Henry of Louisiana; Mrs. O. V. Jackson of Rolla, and Mrs E. G. Reissaus of Cape Girardeau.

The auxiliary pledged a budget of $4000, including $2000 to provide a rector at Poplar Bluff, a district which hitherto has had no regular service.

Not Disclose Some Secrets

Is Proposed More Laxity On Publicity

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The senate military committee agreed today to permit members to make public all information they obtain in future closed sessions, except military secrets.

It voted down, however, a motion to hold open hearings on the administration's current defense program and defeated by an 8 to 8 tie vote, a motion by Senator Austin (R-Vt) to hold open hearings on future bills.

It postponed until Monday action on a motion by Senator Clark (D-Mo) to make public the record of its investigation of the proposed sale of the latest type of military planes to France.

Senator Austin said he interpreted today's action to mean that committee members would be free to discuss with newspaper men all that had taken place in the committee room in closed sessions except matters involving military secrets.

Both house and senate were in recess today, but committees were busy.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company assured the federal monopoly committee, through counsel, that in future elections of directors, company agents would not sign the names of policyholders to ballots.

Attorney generals of 39 states, opposing a proposal for reciprocal taxation on government securities, federal state and local, told a senate subcommittee congress had no constitutional power to tax state and municipal bonds.

Secretary Wallace said a price-fixing farm bill pending before the senate agricultural committee might increase consumer costs $1,000,000,000 a year.

In hearings on proposed substitutes for the social security system, Representative Brewster (R-Me) asserted that "everybody with a job and salary now would sacrifice to some extent" if the Townsend old age pension plan went into effect.

In connection with the question of publicity on military committee meetings, Secretary Morgenthau said he had suggested that the committee withhold parts of his testimony on the sale of American planes to France, but declared these portions would not conceal the treasury's part in the deal.

Prolonged Struggle On Appointments Looms

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(AP)—A prolonged struggle between President Roosevelt and the senate over the politically-vital question of federal appointments was indicated today by controversies over new nominations.

The chief executive has encountered senate displeasure over his selections of a half dozen important officials. A clamor of criticism among opposition senators has reached the highest pitch since the court reorganization issue two years ago.

One nomination — that of Floyd H. Roberts to be a federal judge in Virginia — already has been rejected, 2 to 9. The president was bluntly critical of the action, taken after Senators Glass and Byrd, Virginia Democrats, had termed the nomination "personally offensive."

Following up a charge by Glass that Mr. Roosevelt was seeking to "purge" the two Virginia senators, Byrd said last night the judgeship appointment had been made "a vehicle to carry out a political purpose of retaliation."

Referring to the constitutional provision authoriing the president to make certain appointments "by and with the advice and consent of the senate," Byrd said:

"It is well to recall that the power of appointment to such offices as district judge is a joint power divided equally between the president and the senate."

Senator Thomas (D-Utah), usually a strong supporter of the administration, told the senate yesterday rejection of Roberts was not a conflict between the president and the Virginia senators. Constitutional provisions, he said, make it "dangerous" for the president to act without consulting senators.

Republicans planned a conference soon on the nomination of Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin Progressive, to the interstate commerce commission. The nomination is pending before a subcommittee.

Another ICC nomination yesterday — that of J. Haden Aldredge of Alabama — drew prompt objection from J. G. Luhrsen, executive secretary of the railway labor executive's association. Luhrsen expressed disappointment Frank McManamy, whose seat Aldredge would take, was not reappointed.

Confirmation of V. Allred to be a southern Texas judge was blocked yesterday by Senator King (D-Utah), who said the former Texas governor would be a "carpetbagger" judge.

Recommendations of two pro-administration senators — Guffey (D-Pa) and Donahey (D-Ohio) — were rejected by Mr. Roosevelt in his appointment yesterday of two circuit justices.

Pension Issue Still Debated In Assembly

Senate Keeps Up Battle For Federal Aid

Tightening Up On Requirements

Delay Over The Reducing Of The Age Limit

JEFFERSON CITY, Febk 10.—(AP)—The senate today staved off for the week-end a rapidly developing fight over altering Missouri's social security laws.

In the face of a swarm of amendments by highly critical members, Senator Allen McReynolds (D), Carthage, yielded to a suggestion that two of the three bills aimed at assuring federal pension aid be deferred until Monday. One of them was approved for perfection yesterday.

"This way be can take them up and stay right on them until we are finished," said Senator M. E. Casey (D), Kansas City, who suggested the delay. "We certainly don't want to be accused of holding these bills up in view of certain rumors that the federal government won't give us any money until we pass them."

The government has said flatly the present state law is unsatisfactory.

The chief fight appeared to be centering on the measuse which would prevent trila "do novo" by circuit courts of pension appeals, limiting the courts merely to a review of the evidence considered by the Social Security Commission.

With the controversial McReynolds measures temporarily out of the way, the senate swiftly perfected thre minor measures, one providing for continuance of the use of six supreme court commissioners, another shifting food and drug inspection to the Board of Health from the Health Commissioner, and the third altering slightly the method of certifying election of state senators.

Senator Phil M. Donnelly, chairman of the statute revision commission, tossed in 160 revision bills prepared last summer by his group to bring the state's laws down to date and eliminate inconsistencies and unconstitutionalities. They will form the chief business of the assembly when the "revision period" starts at the conclusion of the session's first 70 days.

All three of McReynolds social security measures — submitted with the stamp of fedeeal approval—were called up for consideration yesterday, but two were caught in a log-jam of amendments and parliamentary maneuvers.

The bill approved yesterday permits the state securities commission to charge "income from whatever souce derived" against an applicant's indigency in considering his application for assistance.

Set for reconsideration Monday is the bill considered in advance least controversial of them all since it is merely a general tightening of the "need" requirements for old age assistance.

The delay came when the senate adopted an amendment by Sen. William Quinn (D), Maywood, lowering the age minimum to 65 in accordance with the constitutional amendment adopted last fall. There was little opposition when the amendment carried and none when the amended bill was ordered perfected.

But near the end of the gruelling day of debate Sen. Michael Kinney (D), St. Louis, reminded the senate that addition of thousands of new pension eligibles at this time might swamp the state commission and prove a handicap in the hurried efforts to get the Missouri program back in the good graces of Washington.

"Let's get the money for those over 70 first and then take care of the lower age group," sec-

Maybe 1939 Will Be The Year Of Reconciliation

The year just passed was in many respects a bitter and an unsatisfactory one. The "Honeymoon Year of the Dictatorships," some are calling it. Business in the United States, and in the world, dropped off from 1937. The world was filled with controversies and strife.

But with 1939 scarcely under way, there seems at least a chance that it may become known as the Year of Reconciliation.

The two-and-a-half-year Spanish war, with its million dead, seems approaching the point where it started—that is, the point where the differences between Nationalist and Republican elements must be threshed out around a table.

That is the way with every war. It begins with a controversy. The thousands die and are shoveled into muddy graves. And then it has to be settled around a table, anyway.

Nobody knows just how the Spanish war will be settled. But the chance that it will be settled in some way during the year is good.

The long-standing controversy between the TVA and the neighboring utility companies is in process of settlement. This fight between the new government agency and the privately-owned utilities has been going on for six year, and there are some who believe that it has had a major effect in holding back business advancement.

If there is any truth in that, the obstacle has been removed by the agreement of the TVA to buy the Tennessee Electric Power Co. for about $80,000,000. Here, as in all settlements, concessions were made by both parties, but apparently mostly by the government.

In any case there is reason to believe that the elimination of this long-fought controversy from the business picture brightens the outlook.

Steps are being taken to settle the controvery with Mexico over expropriation of oil properties owned by Americans there.

After nearly a year of bickering, both countries have found little advantage to themselves in this unhealed breach of normal relations. There is good reason to believe that pressure is piling up behind both governments which may lead to settlement.

Of the Chinese war, as much can not yet be said. But even here there have been "peace feelers."

Despite all the unquiet and the wars and rumors of wars that have been giving the world the jitters during the past few months, it is just possible that 1939 instead of being the year of disaster might turn itself into the year of reconciliation and peace. And wouldn't that be something?

Tornadoes occur almost exclusively in the United States.

Forty thousand couples a year are married in London.

According to careful observers, four-fifths of the conversation among the lower classes in China deals with the subject of food.

Chauncey Jones, a New England watchmaker, was the first to see the advantage of brass over wood for clock works, and was the first American to make them of this metal.

That Small World

Of course it's a small world. The Indiana Hoosier, meeting on the streets of Nairobi a fellow native of Posey county, has often observed as much.

And yet, who would have thought that the war in China would directly affect the business and the living of American mountaineers high up in the Blue Ridge of North Carolina? These mountain men may never have been as much as 50 miles from home "across the holler," but they are feeling the war in China just the same.

You see, they dig ginseng root, and sell it in the medical markets. Widely used, it is nevertheless given almost miraculous qualities by the Chinese. Roots having the shape of animals, dried whole, command a premium in China, and the whole crop has always been in high demand by the Chinese.

But came the Japanese invasion. The market for ginseng root fell to pieces in China. Cinseng won't cure the gaping wounds left by airplane bombs.

Now the mountain folk get from $3 to $4 a pound for their ginseng root, about a fifth of what it brought before the Japanese invasion. A small world? Ask the mountain men!

Oberammergau, Garrison

It is made in Obermmergau, the little German town which all the world knows as the seat of the Passion Play.

But there has been a change in Oberammergau. It has now become a garrison-town for the German army. The picture in question shows a scene in the little mountain inn. A group of the players of the famous religious pageant smoke their pipes contentedly about a table while a Bavarian-hatted companion plays the zither Near the table, the smiling daughters of the players dance with the soldiers of the new garrison.

Smiling, modest, fine-looking young women, dancing rather gravely with spruce, erect, and equally fine-looking fellows in nicely pressed uniforms.

Weren't there enough towns in Germany for garrisons? Did they have to pick Oberammergau, which had, in one sense, a meaning not only for Germany but for all the world?

Once it was Oberammergau, scene of the Passion Play. Now it is just Oberammergau, garrison town.

It is possible for an airplane to make a safe landing with only half a propeller.

In Sweden, the ten-dollar piece of 200 years ago weighed about 44 pounds, and measured about one by two feet.

• The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — Jim Farley will resign in March—that's definite. The Postmaster General has formally notified the White House of his decision and the President has concurred.

Jim will retain the chairmanship of the Democratic National committee and of the New York State Committee. He also has several tempting business offers, but is still undecided which to accept.

One offer he is considering would make him czar of professional football, a job similar to that held by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis in baseball, at a reputed salary of $75,000 a year. Another bid is from the Willys-Overland auto company.

Prominently mentioned in inner circles as Jim's successor in the Cabinet is Frank Walker, former chairman of the National Emergency Council and a close friend of both Roosevelt and Farley. The President will appoint Walker if he can get him. But so far Walker has shined away from the job.

Ostensibly Farley is quitting to rebuild his personal fortune. Actually the main reason behind Jim's departure is to have a freer hand in pursuing his presidential aspirations. When questioned about this recently, the Postmaster General replied:

"I'm not in the market for either the presidency or vice-presidency. I don't have the background or qualifications for the number one job, and I don't want the other."

But Jim didn't mean it. He has been carefully corralling delegates for the 1940 convention ever since last spring. He wants the top berth, but will be satisfied with the vice presidency, especially on a Hull-Farley ticket. Jim believes his key position in the Democratic organization makes him a cinch for one of the two, but he doesn't want to show his hand until the "Chief" has spoken his mind on a third term.

War Czar Jailed

Not many know it, but it took Tommy Corcoran, Steve Early and the prestige of the White House to get Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer Andrews out of the "jug" the other night. He and Mrs. Andrews both spent about five hours in prison, one in a cell and the other in the Women's Bureau, before White House aid came to their rescue.

It all happened when the Andrews' were coming home one Saturday night. Passing a tavern near their Georgetown house, they were attracted by a brawl inside. A lady and husband were having some vigorous domestic differences. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews stopped to see the fight. This proved to be their undoing.

A minute or two later, the participants in the brawl ran up the street. Simultaneously a patrol wagon arrived on the scene. Two policemen jumped off.

"There they are," one of them said, "pointing to the gentleman who administers the wages and hours of the nation.

This rubbed Mrs. Andrews the wrong way, and she gave the cop the dressing-down of his life. This in turn was too much for the cop, and he took them both to the station. There Andrews was searched for weapons, told to empty his pockets. All he had were a couple of identification cards and $9.47 in cash.

The police wanted $10 collateral each for Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and jailed them until help arrived in the person of Paul Sifton, wage-hour deputy administrator, who had been summoned by Steve Early. Sifton posted the $20, and the couple was released. By the time Mrs. Andrews got out of the Women's Bureau it was five o'clock of a Sunday morning.

Dark Horse Governor

Governor Price of Virginia has begun to have certain earmarks of a Democratic dark horse for 1940. He is a friend of Roosevelt, has not alienated the Garner Democrats, and has been an excellent Governor.

Recently Price has been in considerable demand to address public gatherings, and this prestige has become a matter of concern to the Byrd machine in Virginia. They are out to block Price.

An instance of this occurred in Arlington, where a local committee planned to invite the Governor to speak. But they were approached by a Byrd cohort with the pointed suggestion that this would not be a "suitable" thing to do.

Judicial Clean-Up

Forthright Frank Murphy is going at his new job as Attorney General in dead earnest. He is determined to clean up the federal district attorney's offices throughout the country, also the federal judiciary.

The district attorneys in many States he regards as mere adjuncts to the local political machines, while some federal judges he believes have been getting away with murder.

He had already started to move in on Judge Edwin S. Thomas of Connecticut, when the judge suddenly departed for South America. He was wanted in connection with the McKesson and Robbins case.

There is another bad spot in the which is going to be cleaned up. To do this, Murphy is selecting a special assistant who will have nothing else to do but keep an eye on the judiciary.

Murphy is being extremely careful in his selection and is discussing the matter first with Justice Stone of the Supreme Court, Judge Learned Hand of the Circuit Court in New York, and Judges Pecora and Rosenman of the New York Supreme Court. Whether he be Democratic or Republican, Murphy is determined to get a good man.

Mussolini-Hater

One of the bitterest opponents of Mussolini and all forms of dictatorship is an Italo-American, Giuseppe Bellanca, famous for developing some of the first and fastest airplanes in the United States.

Bellanca is so strong for democracy and so vehement against aggression that he refused to sell his planes to Japan long before Secretary Hull called upon American airplane manufacturers to cease such shipments.

Bellanca also manufactured for the Spanish Loyalists 23 transport-bombing planes at relatively low cost which still are awaiting shipment at Newcastle, Del. They were manufactured last spring when it looked as if the arms embargo might be lifted.

The Italian manufacturer could sell them to Japan in a minute, and has the legal right to do so, but they have not budged out of his hangars.

Note—Another Italo-American, Congressman D'Alesandro from Baltimore, has won the nickname "Benito" because of his admiration for Il Duce.

Religious Talk To Centerview PTA

At a meeting of the Centerview P.-T. A. Friday night, Rev. Daniel A. Moore, pastor of the Green Ridge church, after reading from the New Testament of the Good Samaritan gave an illustrative talk on the four types of people in the Scripture who have counterparts today.

First, he said, there is the fellow who says "I will live if others must die," represents the robbers; second, those who say "I will live and let live," represented by the priest and Leviticus; third, those who assert "I will live and I will help others to live," represented by the Good Samaritan, and fourth, the one who says "I will die if needs be to let others live," "whom we know," said Rev. Moore, "as our good friend, the Lord Jesus.'

Mrs. Marker was in charge of the following program:

Piano solo by Warneta Marker; "Brighten the Corner' by the audience; recitation, "I'm a P.-T. A. Boy," Lee Roy Pottorff; "The Old Rugged Cross," the audience; recitation, "My Favorite Pie," by Vestane Marker; recitation, "My Face," by Opal Pottorff; song, "If Your Heart Keeps Right," the audience; recitation, "Mother," by Grace Pottorff; violin solo, "My Lovely Caroline," by Dorothy Cordes; songs, 'Church by the Side of the Road," and "Somebody's Boy," the audience; and following Rev. Moore's talk, a recitation, "Good-bye," by Mary Lou Logan.

Following the program refreshments were served.

Play Presented At Club Meeting

"Farm Security Night", with all recent additions to the Hughesville community especially invited to attend, was the project at the Hughesville Community Club Friday night.

With the new president, Clinton Lowrey, in charge, the business meeting included the naming of Mrs. G. G. Gorrell as song leader.

One act play, "Say It With Taffy", Mary Helen Herring, Hazel Hill, F. C. Dorman, Woodrow Davis and Sam Gail Tuck. This play was the exchange number from the Houstonia high school.

Choral readings: Rudyard Kipling's "Danny Deevers"; Stephen Vincent Benet's "The Mountain Whippoorwill' and "The Pirate Don Durke of Dawdee"—presented by the Hughesville speech class composed of Dorothy Stephens, Maude Catherine Davis, Ruth Owen, Dora Dale Siron, Lillian Rages, Tessa Purnell, Kathryn Rages, Bernice Stephenson, Connie Crain, Vernon Schneck, Harry Smith, Handly Downs, Wallace Lowrey, Clayton Callis and Junior Kincheloe.

• SERIAL STORY

NO TIME TO MARRY

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: Cynthia accuses Janet of not loving Barney. That night Barney comes home appearing more tired and haggard than Janet has ever seen him. It was alarming.

CHAPTER XXIV

JANET choked down an impulse to cry out, "What is it, Barney? What has happened?"

Instead, she said with an artificial brightness for which she hated herself, "Dinner's practically on the table, Barney."

"Could it wait?" Barney asked. "I—there's something I'd like to get off my chest before we eat."

"Why—I'll see." She tried to speak quietly.

In the kitchen she said to herself angrily, Don't be such a fool! There's nothing to be worried about.

"Will five minutes do?" she asked when she went back. "I guess the peas will take it."

"It will do to cover the high spots."

He had dropped wearily upon the davenport, his long legs spread before him. Janet sat down not far away, a little stiffly, her hands folded in her lap to keep them from shaking too much.

"Well, Jan," Barney said, his grin twisting as he spoke, "you see before you a gentleman of leisure. In other words, your husband has joined the ranks of the unemployed."

"Oh?" Janet said, her voice thin and wooden in her own ears.

"It's almost funny," Barney went on. "Here I was, the wise guy who knew the inside story of city graft, national corruption, and international trickery, and I didn't even know what was going on behind the scenes of my own sheet . . . It seems, Janet, that the News has been on the skids for several months. The owner was counting on private loans to see it through the woods. Well, the loans were coming from someone who had good reasons for keeping that story of mine out of print."

"But I don't understand," Janet said faintly in a moment. "Then why did they publish any of it?"

"Well, the owner's been hunting somewhere in the wilds where the interested parties couldn't get to him at once; and it wasn't till a day or so ago that old Owlface, himself, really knew any more about the financial angle than I did . . . Now he's out on his neck, poor devil, with me at his heels for good measure . . . I could have stayed if I'd sold them the rights to the story and let them print it with the hot parts killed to save their yellow faces . . . But, Janet, I couldn't."

"Of course you couldn't," Janet cried hotly. "Anyhow, you'll get another job in no time."

"Oh, sure!" He said it a little too carelessly as he lighted a cigaret. "It isn't a job I'm worried about. It's—what a flop I have turned out to be, Jan—after all the tall talking I've been doing."

SUDDENLY Janet knew she couldn't bear the look in his eyes any longer — angry, yet shamed and beaten, above his careful smile—as if apologizing to her, begging her to understand. With a soft rush she was beside him; and taking his head in her arms, she pillowed it on her breast, her cheek against his forehead.

"Oh, Barney, darling!" she murmured. "They can't do this to you! I love you too much."

"When you really love a man," Cynthia had said, "you feel like his mother sometimes That's one way you know."

For a moment Barney sat motionless. Then he lifted his head and looked at her, and as if completely satisfied, drew a deep breath, dropped his head again, and put his arms around her.

"This is the way it ought to be Jan," he said. "The rest of it doesn't matter now."

But it would matter again, Jan knew, terribly. And so she held him all the tighter.

So they sat, without knowing how long, while the peas dried up on the top of the stove, and the souffle burned to a crisp. Finally they went out and dined on steak and mushrooms at the Auberge, because, Barney said, there was nothing so good for the morale as spending money when you hadn't any.

Not that it was quite as bad as that. The rent, at least, was paid for a month. Janet had her monthly stipend . . . Barney winced a little when she mentioned that, but said, "Swell! We may need it." And Barney still had a little money in the bank. It would have been plenty, he said, if he hadn't had to make that chase across the continent on his own time because the boss had decided the story wasn't worth following up after all.

BUT it developed that jobs were not growing on every tree. The other papers had already reduced their staffs. Barney made one or two trips to neighboring towns where he knew editors, only to come back with his grin a bit more strained each time.

In the next few weeks Janet learned a great many things she had never guessed, even during those comparatively pinched last months with Aunt Mary.

She learned that one laundry bill may completely wreck a week's budget, and spent several back-breaking days over the tubs in the basement. She learned that, if windows are to serve their purpose, they must be washed from time to time; and that it is entirely possible to do it yourself, clinging with one hand and working with the other while you hang suspended over a dizzying abyss. She learned to elbow her way about crowded, untidy markets, because they are the ones where food is cheapest. She learned that 50 cents for the electric meter may seem an enormous item, and that some people can't afford roses, even at 25 cents a dozen.

The first time Barney found her on her hands and knees, scrubbing the kitchen floor, he turned white, lifted her bodily out of the way, and finished the job—somewhat splashily—himself. Janet laughed at him.

"How did you think these things usually got done, you crazy Irishman?" she asked. "I suppose you imagined the Little Folk came out of their hiding every night and did the day's chores for poor but deserving housewives. We're lucky to have plenty of water to wash the floor with. Where Cyn is, they buy it in barrels."

NEVERTHELESS, they got on famously till the day Barney skidded on an icy road. The bill for his own car was $17, besides $87 for the car he hit; and the liability insurance had lapsed the day before because, Barney reasoned, there was no use spending money for insurance if you drove with reasonable care.

The morning after Barney told her that, Janet said, trying to sound very matter of fact, "I think we'd better plan to move the first of the month. While I was marketing yesterday, I saw some places advertised on 32nd Street for half what we're paying here, and—"

"You're not going to live on 32nd Street."

"And why not?" Janet tried for a note of cheerful practicality. "It's convenient to all sorts of things . . . More so than this . . . We can take something unfurnished and get some of Aunt Mary's things out of storage."

"When we move from here," Barney said through tight lips, "it will be because we're moving to something better."

Nevertheless, Janet did go house-hunting next day.

She did not wear her fur coat this time; but a shabby tweed suit and an old hat.

Miss MacDonald and Eddy Coming in 'Sweethearts'

The outstanding musical treat of the new movie season comes to the Liberty Theatre this Sunday with the fifth co-starring appearance of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy in "Sweethearts," filmization of the noted Victor Herbert operetta and marking the first appearance of the popular singing team in a technicolor production.

The new picture also marks a departure upon the part of Miss MacDonald and Eddy from such of their previous triumps as "Naughty Marietta," "Maytime," and "Girl of the Golden West," in being a modern comedy, the screen play having been adapted from the Herbert operetta by the famed comedy writers, Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell.

W. S. Van Dyke II and Hunt Stromberg, respective director and producer of "Naughty Marietta," again joined forces on the filmization of "Sweethearts," which boasts a supporting cast of such distinguished stage and screen headliners as Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Florence Rice, Mischa Auer, Herman Bing, Reginald Gardiner, Fay Holden, Allyn Joslyn, Olin Howland, Lucile Watson, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart, Berton Churchill and little Terry Kilburn, boy star of "Lord Jeff."

Victor Herbert's lovely music abounds in the picture with Miss MacDonald and Eddy heard in eight musical numbers, among them "Mademoiselle," "Every Lover Must Meet His Fate," "Summer Serenade," 'Pretty As a Picture," "Sweethearts" and "Little Gray Home In the West." Miss MacDonald dances with the limber-footed Ray Bolger, new and original Albertina Rasch ballets and striking chorus ensembles are other highlights in a picture filled with music and color.

Will Rogers at Uptown Today And Saturday — Stage Attraction Tonight

Beloved Will Rogers is seen once more in his perfect role of "David Harum" a lovable, laughable, witty horse-trader and banker. The picture besides its humor has romance helped by the kindly David Harum, and the exciting horse race with David singing his horse to victory!

The second feature "Alcatraz Island," featuring John Litel and Ann Sheridan is the smashing story of the famous penal institution of that name.

On the stage Friday night the second of the Search for Talent hours will be presented. Thus far there are twenty entrants ready for the trials. A completely diversified program has been arranged that will have tap dancing, singing, duets and trios, string bands, banjo and guitar and uke playing, and fiddling. A score of local entertainers will compete for the weekly prizes and there's sure to be some real good talent displayed and an hour of excellent entertainment.

S-C Tigers To Play Kirksville

Game Tonight To Be On The Local Court

Tonight the Smith-Cotton Tigers will endeavor to avenge the defeat hung onto them earlier in the season by the Kirksville high school quintet. The game will be played on the local high school court, starting at 8 o'clock.

Earlier in the season on making the circuit of the Central Missouri conference the Tigers took it on the chin when Kirksville, the so-called weakest team of the conference, beat them.

Kirksville is not to be overlooked by any of the conference clubs as in a great many cases the windup usually comes with the weakest team causing the upsets.

Saturday night it will be Hannibal and Sedalia on the home court the game to be called at 8 o'clock. Hannibal was the only team which the Tiger aggregation defeated on the fatal trip which included Kirksville.

For tonight's game either William "Bill" Lyons or George Ramsey will call the game. Saturday night Chester Knorpp of Pleasant Hill will handle the game.

Apostoli Fights Conn Tonight

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Fred Apostoli, who never misses the brass ring the second time around, will throw a punch or 200 at boxing's fastest growing reputation tonight when he meets Billy Conn, the handsome Pittsburgh boxer.

Conn fought Apostoli in December. He left-handed the San Franciscan dizzy for seven rounds and managed to withstand Fred's closing rush to win a ten-round decision. Since then he has replaced Lou Nova as the Mahatma of the industry and is regarded as its most promising bit of property.

His value may be subjected to a downward revision tonight. Apostoli never has failed to improve the second time out against any fighter. He thinks the longer route—tonight's milling is for 15 rounds—will help and admits he took the Irishman a bit lightly in their first bout.

Apostoli's New York middleweight title won't be at stake. Conn can not make the weight. He will go in at 168 or thereabouts, well over the middleweight limit of 160, and probably will outweigh fearless Freddy seven or eight pounds.

A goodly crowd will be on hand for the bout. Mike Jacobs figures there will be between 13,000 and 14,000 of the faithful in Madison Square Garden and some $40,000 in the bill when the bell rings.

Must Get Joe Medwick Pleased

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Although their spring training season begins in three weeks, the St. Louis Cardinals still have some important business ahead—getting Joe Medwick satisfied for 1939.

What's more, the Cardinals haven't even sent their star slugger a contract yet, vice president and general manager Branch Rickey said today.

"We'll have to get around to that very soon now," Rickey said. He denied the club had talked terms with Medwick before the outfielder left for Florida several weeks ago.

Last year Medwick was signed to a contract at St. Petersburg, Fla., by President Sam Breadon just as the Cards' training season was getting under way. The Cardinals train at St. Petersburg again this year.

Baseball law says a club must send contracts to all players by Feb. 15 or risk losing those not offered terms through free agency.

Both Cardinal executives returned here yesterday empty-handed they said—as far as player deals go—from the national League's winter meeting in New York.

Since Phillips 66 Came to Town

"WHAT A FUNNY LOOKING CAR" is the universal comment on any 1910 model. Actually, the gasoline of that era is just as funny, compared with that of today.

Progress in motor car design has been more than matched by improvements in motor fuels. And one of the leaders among modern gasolines is today's high test Phillips 66 Poly Gas.

No other gasoline will so consistently give you fast starting in freezing weather, because no other gasoline so consistently tops the list in high test quality. Yet you pay not a penny extra for this extra high test, because Phillips is the WORLD'S LARGEST PRODUCER of natural high test gasoline.

Your modern car will yield a new high in engine performance with this modern, high test, high energy, custom-tailored motor fuel.

Try a tankful . . . compare . . . see if Phillips 66 Poly Gas doesn't give you just about the fastest cold-weather starting you have ever enjoyed.

Peace Loving Pope Pius XI Passes Away At The Vatican

Franco Ratti, Monsignor De Romanis, Cardinal Pacelli, nurses and a few other dignitaries knelt by the bedside.

The Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, said the holy father "appreciated the gravity of his condition and evidenced a desire to receive the sacred sacrament."

At 5 a. m., as the Pope's condition became steadily more alarming, oxygen was administered for a second time.

As the oxygen mask was applied to the pontiff's face, Monsignor De Romanis began reciting prayers while all those gathered around the bed knelt.

Osservatore Romano said the Pope attempted to join in the ritual with gestures of the head and hands.

At 5:20, the narrative continued, "The rasping became ever more fatiguing and Professor Milani announced to the grave consternation of those present that the end must be considered imminent. The passing occurred, in fast, a few minutes later.

"At 5:30 Monsignor De Romanis approached the great pontiff and asked him to repeat with him the admirable Christian prayer, "Jesus, Joseph and Mary, may my soul expire in peace with you."

"Calmly," said the paper, "with a serenity which reflected the purity of a life devoted entirely to God, his holiness, turning his head toward the right, yielded up his fine soul to God."

After Dr. Milani pronounced the Pope dead, Cardinals Pacelli and Caccia Dominioni approached the bed and kissed the pontiff's hand.

In the traditional ceremony of the church, Cardinal Pacelli as camerlengo, or interim ruler, made the official pronouncement of death of the 261st Pope—born Achille Ratti, the son of an Italian silk worker.

As if the Pope still lived, Cardinal Pacelli approached the death bed and drew back the white veil that covered the pontiff's face. Flickers of light from dozens of candles fell upon the aged countenance.

"Achille!" called the thin, ascetic cardinal who for many years had worked closely with his temporal ruler.

The echoed through the small, plain bedroom.

No answer.

"The Pope," said the cardinal, "is truly dead."

Chant For The Dead

In quavering voices those in the room began the "De profundis" chant for the dead: "Out of the depths, O Lord, do I cry unto Thee."

Cardinal Francesco Marchetti-Selvaggiani, the Pope vicar for the Rome diocese, began to say mass in the Pope's private chapel a few feet from the death bed.

The Cardinal Penitentiary Lorenzo Lauri followed him at the altar for another mass, his office being the only one with that of the camerlengo which did not lapse with the people's death.

Cardinal Pacelli and the other cardinals removed their violoo mantellettas, their distinguishing mark of rank, since they now were more than cardinals—each with a chance to become the next pontiff.

Although there has been speculation on the possibility of a foreign cardinal being elected Pope, Vatican prelates forecast that Pius' successor would be an Italian in accordance with the centuries of tradition.

Possible For Successor

Among those considered possible choices are the Italian cardinals, Ascalesi, Fossati, Dalla Costa, Boetto, Piazza, Schuster and Lavitrano.

Cardinal Pacelli went soon to his offices to start notifying the diplomatic corps of the holy see, papal representatives abroad, including Archbishop Cicognani in Washington, and the American cardinals—O'Connell of Boston, Dougherty of Philadelphia, and Mundelein of Chicago.

He sent a formal notification to King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy, Premier Mussolini and the heads of other states, said Stefani, the Italian news agency.

The cardinals were expected to gather here as quickly as possible to fix the date for election of a new Pope for Feb. 28, since 18 days is the longest delay allowed for the assembly.

The pontiff had had the longest reign of any Pope since Leo XIII died in 1903. His tenure was more than twice that of his predecessor, Benedict XV.

Elected on Feb. 16, 1922, he was in the fifth day of the 18th year of his stewardship.

The funeral will be in St. Peter's, probably the afternoon of Feb. 15, with burial, as the Pope wish, in the grottoes of St. Peter's near the tombs of his two immediate predecessors— Pius X and Benedict XV—and but a few yards from the tomb of St. Peter.

Requiem services lasting nine days start Sunday.

Mask of Pontiff

Arrangements were made for Sculptor Arelio Mistruzzi to make a mask of the pontiff at noon (6 a. m. EST) and then for the body to be embalmed, dressed and removed to the Sistine chapel for viewing by church and civil dignitaries.

Earlier plans to set up the bier in the throne room were abandoned.

The public will be permitted to pay homage later when the body is placed in St. Peter's in the choir of the chapel with the feet projecting through iron gates to enable the faithful to kiss his slippers.

"Pope of Conciliation"

ROME, Feb. 10.—Premier Mussolini described the death of Pope Pius XI today as "a source of grief for the church and for the Italian nation."

He called the late pontiff "the Pope of the conciliation" in a reference to the negotiation of the lateran accord, healing the breach between the church and state, which was signed ten years ago tomorrow.

The premier's sentiments were expressed in a telegram to Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli which said:

"The death of the Pope of the conciliation is a source of grief for the church and for the Italian nation. As the interpreter of the sentiments of the Italian people, I express to your very reverend eminence and to the sacred college the sympathy felt by the Fascist government and my own personal sympathy."

King Vittorio Emanuele ordered court mourning for eight days.

Crown Prince Umberto arranged to pay the homage of the royal house in a visit this afternoon to the Sistine chapel after the uontiff's body was removed there.

Count Caleazzo Ciano, foreign minister, was chosen to represent the Fascist government in paying tribute at the bier.

The government ordered flags of all public buildings placed at half staff until the day of the funeral.

Schools suspended classes today and will do so again on the day of the funeral.

All places of public entertainment were closed.

Flags at Half Mast

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—Flags on all public buildings in Berlin were ordered flown at half-mast today as a mark of respect for the Pope's death.

Foreign embassies and legations took similar action.

The German ambassador at the Vatican will represent Germany at the funeral and it is possible a special delegation will be appointed by Chancellor Hitler.

A government spokesman said Germany would do everything that corresponds to diplomatic usage in such cases. The press was instructed to review the career of the Pope with the respect due to his office and person.

Government circles spoke of Pope Pius' "irreconcilable attitude toward national socialism" today as mournful Berlin Catholics poured into St. Hedwig's cathedral from early morning to kneel in prayer for the pontiff's soul.

There was, however, no strictly official comment on the Pope's death.

Many German bishops, including Count Konrad Von Preysing-Lichtenegg-Moss, bishop of Berlin, sent messages of condolence to the Berlin papal Nuncio whose office was crowded by mourners.

Condolences From U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Secretary Hull, expressing the "profound condolences" of President Roosevelt, cabled the Vatican City that Pope Pius' death was "received with deep sorrow throughout the United States."

Hull's message to Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, said:

"The President desires me to express to your eminence profound condolences on the death of his holiness Pope Pius Eleventh. His great spiritual qualities and his zeal for peace and tolerance won him a place in the hearts of all races and creeds. Word of his passing has been received with deep sorrow throughout the United States."

For Minor Changes In Farm Act

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP) Secretary Wallace told the senate agriculture committee today he favored any program to increase the farmer's share of the national income but favored going ahead with the present program for 1939.

Wallace said he thought a "cost-of-production" farm bill under consideration by the committee would not accomplish this.

The secretary predicted federally fixed minimum prices "would have fare-reaching repercussions on farmers' returns."

Wallace asked only "minor changes" be put in operation this year.

"Farm leaders are sick and tired of having a new farm bill passed in the late winter or early spring," he declared.

"Any sweeping changes in the national farm program should be delayed until 1940. If there are any, they should be passed at this session of congress."

Coal Truck Was Afire

The fire companies at 10:30 o'clock this morning were called to Fourteenth street and Missouri avenue where a 1936 Chevrolet coal truck had caught fire. The wiring on the truck was practically burned off. Damage was estimated at about $5.

Obituaries

Funeral of A. J. Klein

Funeral services for Andrew J. Klein, 63 years old, who passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. C. Jett, 1617 East Sixth street, will be held at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. B. B. Bess, a Baptist minister, officiating.

Pallbearers will be the following friends: Clarence Palmer, Charles Holt, Clarence Jett, Mert Freund, Lon Tucker and Earl Birdsong.

Interment will be in the Salem cemetery.

Funeral of Mrs. Gibson

The funeral of Mrs. Bessie Gibson, who passed away Thursday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. L. Brooks, 416 West Sixteenth street, were conducted at the Gillespie Funeral Home at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon with the Rev. Ralph A. Waggoner, pastor of the Proadway Presbyterian church, officiating.

Mrs. George Sneed, Mrs. Percy Metcalf, Mrs. H. C. Johnson and Mrs. Harry Wagner, were in charge of the music for the service.

The body accompanied by relatives will be taken to Dixon, Ill., early Saturday morning where funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon and interment will be made in the cemetery beside the grave of her husband, the late E. E. Gibson.

William Hull

William Hull, aged 87 years, died Thursday at the home of a son, P. H. Hull, 1007 Monroe avenue, Kansas City.

Mr. Hull for a long term of years previous to going to Kansas City made his home at Syracuse, Mo., and before retiring was employed by the Missouri Pacific there.

He was also the father of W. Lee Hull, a trainman for the Missouri Pacific, formerly of Sedalia, now of Jefferson City, and of C. W. Hull, Danville, Ill., Earl F. Hull, Kansas City, a daughter, Mrs. Maude Gillum, Kansas City, a brother, J. C. Hull, of St. Louis and a sister, Mrs. Annabel Long, of Huntington, West Virginia.

The body will be taken to Syracuse, his former home, where funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon with burial in Syracuse cemetery.

Mrs. Lollie Chapel

Mrs. Lollie Chapel, wife of Will Chapel, died unexpectedly of a heart attack this morning at Fort Meyers, Fla., where she and Mr. Chapel were spending the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapel left Sedalia, their home, for Florida, three months ago, and news of her death came as a shock to her relatives.

Mrs. Chapel, who was before her marriage, Miss Lollie Judy, was about 63 years of age. She leaves her husband, a retired Missouri Pacific engineer, and three daughters, Mrs. Helen Gorrell, wife of Dick Gorrell, 620 East Tenth street, Mrs. E. C. Andler, St. Louis, and Mrs. D. O. McCoon, Miami Springs, Fla.

Two former Sedalians, sisters of Mr. Chapel, Mrs. J. R. McAlister and Mrs. A. E. Hine, reside in Fort Meyers, and Mr. and Mrs. Chapel were sojourning there with them.

Rose Marie Smith

Rose Marie Smith, three days old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith, 1811 South Montgomery avenue, passed away at the family home about 6 o'clock this morning.

The baby was born February 7, 1939.

Funeral services will be held at the grave in Crown Hill cemetery at 11 o'clock Saturday morning with the Reverend C. W. Swanson, officiating.

Robbery Slayer Goes To Chair

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Calmly and steadily, Sylvester Warner, 29-year old convicted robbery slayer, walked early today to a death he expected more than four years ago.

Two charges of electricity ended Warner's life in the electric chair at Western Kentucky penitentiary just as he finished reciting the Lord's Prayer.

Warner, termed the 'forgotten man" because of his long confinement in the prison death house, was convicted with two others of robbing and beating to death John White, 82, and his ex-soldier son, Clay White, 54, on the night of December 3, 1933. The robbery netted $11 in cash.

Warner and Huston Jeffries were sentenced to death. Carl Hardin, third convicted youth, received life imprisonment.

On the eve of the scheduled executions October 23, 1934, Ruby Laffoon, then governor, commuted Jeffries, sentence to life imprisonment and granted Warner a stay of execution for further study of the case.

Laffoon was succeeded thirteen months later by Gov. A. B. Chandler. Although the case bobbed up several times, Warner's "temporary" stay lengthened. Last month Governor Chandler reviewed the slayings and fixed the execution date.

While Warner sat in a death row cell, 25 other men went to their deaths in the prison electric chair.

an order that the time interval should be extended.

Part In Government.

The previous time limit of 10 days had been made short to prevent much of an interval elapsing between the rulers of the church, that confusion might not arise during the interregnum.

American Cardinals also will be able to take part in the government of the church during the interregnum. As soon as they arrive in Rome they will have an opportunity to serve on the committees of cardinals which rule the vast ecclesiastical body until the new pope is elected.

Every day there is a new executive committee for this purpose. It is composed of four cardinals. The Cardinal Camerlengo, Pacelli, is a permanent member. The other three are chosen every day, according to their seniority. They decide any problems requiring immediate solution.

When the conclave starts the cardinals are imprisoned with their secretaries, cooks, barbers and pages in a specially constructed cell block. This is a portable wooden city built in Vatican corridors. Once inside all the conclavists are pledged to secrecy. Two votes are cast daily—morning and afternoon—until a new pope is elected.

Until the whisp of white smoke from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel announces that the pope has been chosen, nothing can be predicted with positiveness for no one, not even a cardinal, knows what the College of Cardinals will do.

Forecast Is Made.

But, assuming the college continues the precedents of recent centuries, the following can be forecast:

1—The new pope will be an Italian.

2—He will be a present member of the College of Cardinals.

3—He probably will be an Italian cardinal with wide administrative experience, such as the Archbishops of Milan, Turin, Genoa, Venice, Florence, Naples and Palermo.

Since the days of St. Peter, there have been thirty-eight popes who were not Italians. But no non-Italian has been chosen in more than 400 years—since Adrian VI, a Hollander, elected in 1522.

Italians form a clear majority in the college. A two-thirds majority is required, however, and if the Italians should become deadlocked, it is possible enough of them might join with the non-Italians to elect a pope of some other nationality.

MORE ....

In such an event, the United States claim to a pope might be based on the grounds its 20,000,000 Catholics are the largest national group never to have had a pope, it is the largest contributor to the Vatican, it has brought a certain spiritual freshness to the church, and an American pope would be a tremendous impetus to the spread of the faith in the new world.

In recent centuries the college has almost always elected one of its own members. There have been times in the distant past, however, when finding themselves deadlocked, the cardinals have chosen an outsider who never dreamed of being pope.

The archbishops of the more important Italian Sees, having had wide administrative experience, usually have the best chance of being picked. Pius XI was Archbishop of Milan, Benedict XV, Archbishop of Genoa, Pius X Patriarch of Venice.

The present occupants of big Italian sees are:

Alessio Cardinal Ascalesi, Archbishop of Naples.

Maurilio Cardinal Ofossati, Archbishop of Turin.

Elia Cardinal Dalla Costa, Archbishop of Florence.

Pietro Cardinal Boetto, Archbishop of Genoa.

Adeodato Cardinal Piazza, Patriarch of Venice.

Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster, Archbishop of Milan.

Luigi Cardinal Lavitrano, Archbishop of Palermo.

These seven range from 54 to 67 in age. In recent centuries most popes have been between these ages when elected.

In view of the importance of the relations of the Vatican with the Italian government, greatly improved in the early part of Pius XI's reign by the signing of the lateran accord and strained in the latter part by his opposition to some features of Fascism, the attitude of cardinals toward Fascism may be an important determining factory.

Some observers believe it unlikely any cardinal regarded as either too anti-Fascist or too pro-Fascist would be chosen. It is believed cardinals from democratic countries, including the United States, may take firm stand against anyone leaning toward Fascism.

Cardinal Dalla Costa of Florence long has been regarded as rather anti-Fascist. Several of the others, especially Cardinal Schuster of Milan, previously were regarded as friendly toward Fascism, but since the church-state dispute over Italy's racial policy, they may have changed. Cardinal Schuster, who once made enthusiastic statements about Fascism, took the racial policy to task in a stron sermon.

Pension Issue Still Debated In Assembly

onded Sen. George Rozier (R), Perryville.

"It can be used to choke off the governor's appropriation," it was contended.

The house eliminated it, but the senate retained it—which leaves some compromising to be done somewhere before a conference committee is called into play.

Senate committee action on the house approved social security investigation was delayed by yesterday's prolonged meeting.

Dr. Harry F. Parker, state health commissioner, asked the house appropriations committee yesterday for $895,000 in 1939 and 1940, as compared with a grant of $306,720 in the last biennium.

He said the three-fold increase was necessary to meet the demands of counties in all parts of the state for more public health services.

Floyd C. Shoemaker, secretary of the state historical society at Columbia, told the committee the society would need a $12,310 increase over its $47,510 appropriation for 1937-38.

Home From Pleasureable Trip To Florida

Marion C. Goodwin, his mother Mrs. Chris Goodwin and his sister, Miss Lois, have returned from a recent pleasure trip to Homestead, Fla. They were the guests of Mrs. Goodwin's sister, Mrs. May King.

While in Florida they visited many places of interest including The Fountain of Youth and the oldest house in the United States, in the city of St. Augustine.

A most interesting part of the trip was the visit to Key West.

The horse races at Hileah park proved very interesting to the young people of the party.

Heavy Damage In Greenville Storm

GREENVILLE, Mo., Feb. 10.—A cyclonic wind, following a terrific hail storm, ripped through Greenville at shortly before last midnight and wrecked or damaged virtually every business building and many dwellings.

A survey this morning, however, indicated no casualties. Fear that considerable damage may have been caused in the rural areas of Wayne county was expressed but telephone lines were blown down and an immediate check was impossible.

Charles Ellinghouse, local newspaperman, roughly estimated the damage here at between $30,000 and $50,000. He said numerous stories of miraculous escape from the storm were told today by residents of this county seat town, doomed to extinction within three years through construction of a flood control dam on the St. Francis river at Wappapello.

Lines of communication through out Southeastern Missouri were crippled by the storm which was rather severe in a dozen counties and which lasted for about an hour.

The Missouri Pacific railroad reported several block signals between Piedmont and Bismarck were disabled by lightning or limbs blown from trees. A large tree was blown across the railroad tracks some 15 miles north of Poplar Bluff, breaking all telegraph lines and delaying one train.

Rainfall here totaled 1.3 inches. Both the Black and St. Francis rivers rose rapidly this morning. Black river showing a rise at Poplad Bluff of two feet in a span of three hours after the storm. However, the rainfall was not enough to cause any concern along the two rivers which were falling after being at flood stage a week ago.

Clear Docket Of Numerous Suits

A damage suit in circuit court, filed by C. A. Wingate against Roy Kirchhofer, has been settled and dismissed today in, with costs against the defendant.

Mrs. Norma Pelletier was granted a divorce from Joseph Pelletier and her maiden name, Norma Constant, was restored.

Jack Rayl was granted a divorce from Martha Rayl.

Mrs. Anna L. Moseby was granted a divorce from Rush Allen Moseby.

A number of suits on tax bills, pending against the Sweet Springs Drainage District, were disposed of today as follows:

Judgment by default against William Owen in the sum of $410.58 and $40 attorney fees; against John Brandt, et al, in the sum of $125.66 and $15 attorney fees; against Wyatt A. Vickery, et al, in the sum of $238.58 and $25 attorney fees; against August Lange in the sum of $148.31 and $15 attorney fees; against Frieda Lange in the sum of $90.42 and $10 attorney fees; against Wm. E. Van Bibber in the sum of $154.62 and $15 attorney fees; against Helen Wellman in the sum of $607.80 and $60 attorney fees; against John Borchers in the sum of $607.80 and $60 attorney fees; against Concordia Investment Co., in the sum of $607.80 and $60 attorney fees.

Two suits by the Drainage District, one against Bankers Life Insurance Company and John Borchers, were dismissed.

Loyalists To Last Stand In Central Spain

government—was confidently predicted.

Franco's minister of the interior, Ramon Serrano Suner, said in Barcelona, "I hope we shall not be long in announcing new and definite successes which will cause joy for all."

Despite denials from the government side and spirited protests of determination to carry on the war, insurgent sources said General Jose Miaja, dictator of the Madrid-Valencia zone, already was negotiating with Franco for a peace agreement.

The date of February 18, when the civil war will be just 31 months old, has been suggested for the surrender of the central zone. The terms appeared to be those demanded by Franco-unconditional surrender.

Franco has long held that this was the only way to end the war, Britain and France, seeking to speed peace, were understood, however, to have been assured by the insurgents that Italian and German forces would be withdrawn and government forces would be treated with all possible leniency.

Dispatches from Valencia said General Miaja, newly named supreme chief of the government's land, sea and airforces, was conferring almost constantly with his subordinates. Franco's northern troops already were turning to the central zone in case the war should continue.

On the French frontier the insurgents were installed at two Catalonian border points — Le Perthus and Neustra Senora De Muria—leaving three pockets still to be cleaned out around Puigcerda in the west, Prats De Mollo in the center and Pot Bou in the east.

Government troops scrambled along the coast road through Port Bou, burning and blasting supplies.

Issue Handbills In Labor Fight

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 10.—The Missouri Chapter of the American Student Union today distributed handbills on the campus urging "the University to abandon its anti-labor policy and fall in line with the majority opinion."

The bills were passed out in sympathy with the Columbia Central Labor Council's protest of a non-unionized university maintenance department. Council pickets marched on the campus for the fourth day.

The ASU charged that the university is violating a moral obligation to recognize trade unionism.

Captioned "Workers, the students are with you," the handbills state, "the students feel that a state institution of thought and learning should do nothing to foster anti-labor and reactionary sentiments."

The bill says "We (ASU) know that employees of the university dare not join your union for fear of losing their jobs. We know that the university administration does not represent the majority of opinion of the citizens of Missouri in refusing its employees this constitutional right."

A member of the American Student Union said the group had more than 20 members here. It is a national organization.

Initiations By Job's Daughters

The officers of Sedalia Bethel No. 15, Order of Job's Daughters, initiated a class of seven girls at the Masonic Temple Wednesday evening. The girls initiated were: Dorothy Hedderich, Betty Bob Scotten, Eleta Wheeler, Betty Collins, Anna Mae Gerster, Virginia Glenn and Grace Adela Lamm.

Miss Mary E. Ellis, queen of the Sedalia Bethel, introduced the following grand officers: Mrs. Ella Falkenheimer, past surgeon guardian; Mrs. Gladys Morisseau, present grand guardian; Mrs. Mildred Westermann, past grand guardian and Mrs. Ethel Roff, all of St. Louis.

Mrs. Falkenhainer gave a very inspiring talk on the merits of the order and told of her close association with many girls for the past seventeen years.

Mrs. Helen Hedderich was installed as guardian of the Bethel by the visiting grand officers.

Preceding the initiation a dinner was served to about twenty-five of the mothers of Job's daughters and members of both Eastern Star chapters.

Second Of Twins Finally Arrives

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 10—(AP)—The McDonnell baby twins have arrived—the first one last Sunday morning — the other today.

A five-pound son was born this morning at a hospital to Mrs. Milo C. McDonnell, joining his four-pound brother whose premature arrival 120 hours previously will mean a five-day span in their birthdays.

The excited papa, a bookkeeper, mopped his brow — despite the zero temperature outside — sighed "whew" and sank into a chair with all records shattered for a father pacing the local maternity ward.

The babies, named James Charles and John Anthony, are the first born of the 32-year-old mother.

SBA Will Hold Class Initiation

At the regular meeting of Fidelity council, No. 53, Security Benefit Association, Thursday night, two applications were presented and arrangments for a class initiation made for March 2. Ray Weinrich presided.

Following the meeting the questionnaire period was held with the women winning on points and attendace.

An unusually large crowd of members and friends enjoyed the orchestra dance held following the meeting. Refreshments were also served.

Acquit 14 In New Mexico WPA Cases

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 10—(AP)—A federal court jury today acquitted 14 of 25 persons charged with political manipulations of the New Mexico WPA and reported itself hopelessly deadlocked on the remaining eleven.

Wife of a Farmer Is Held In Shooting

FAYETTE, Mo., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Dewey Dougherty, wife of a farmer, was held in jail today awaiting the death or recovery of Mrs. Carl Ivie. 25, critically wounded in a Main street shooting here yesterday. No charges had been filed.

Mrs. Dougherty, the mother of four children, declined comment. Both women are separated from their husbands.

Physicians said there was little chance for recovery of Mrs. Ivie. Her liver and kidneys were pierced by a bullet.

Rev. O. J. Rumpf and Dr. J. E. Cannaday went to Jefferson City Thursday night where Dr. Canaday showed his Alaskan pictures to one hundred fifty persons assembled at the Evangelical church in that city.

Dr. Cannaday, since returning from his Alaskan trip, has shown his very attractive movie pictures of that country to 8,269 persons.

tion tends to shake the public's faith in outside audits."

The committee said Price Waterhouse and Company had been often employed by leading banking firms in New York and had done considerable work in connection with security issues and had acter as consultants to the New York Stock Exchange.

Replies To Attack

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—George L. May, of Price, Waterhouse & Co., said today in response to the report of Senator Wheeler's subcommittee, that it proceeded on a "fundamental misconception."

He asserted that the firm in its certificate took specific exception to the $3,200,000 deposit item which the report said was incorrectly presented.

May said:

"I cannot conceive any legitimate reason or public interest that would have prompted Senator Wheeler to issue this vituperative attack on my firm at this period. The hearings of the sub committee on interstate commerce, of which Senator Wheeler was chairman, ended over a year ago. Why Senator Wheeler should choose this moment to file a report 15 months after the investigation terminated, is a mystery to me.

"Senator Wheeler's report proceeds upon a fundamental misconception. It charges that our certificate was 'false' in describing a special deposit of $3,200,000 under the Terminal Shares contract. We took specific exception to the correctness of the balance sheet and stated in our certificate: 'Included under the caption of special deposits is the amount of $3,200,000 deposited in connection with contracts with Terminal Shares, Inc., which contracts are now the subject of litigation.'

Would Abolish Sales Tax Tokens in Kansas

TOPEKA, Feb. 10.—The house passed and sent to the senate today the bill to abolish sales tax tokens, giving the Republican campaign pledge-redeeming measure a decisive 88 to 20 majority.

The state affairs committee killed a bill by I. T. Richardson (R-Lyon) which would have required preference be given Kansas products and labor in letting of contracts for public works.

A bill requiring shipments of liquor into Kansas to be "tagged" was recommended for passage by the judiciary committee.

Lower Drift On Stock Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A slightly lower drift today characterized one of the sleeiepst market sessions in about eight months.

With the ticker tape motionless for minutes at a time, declines ran to a point or so at the worst. A little timid buying came in at the last and enabled leaders to reduce or concel extreme losses. A number of modest closnig gains were in evidence. Transfers for the five hours approrimated 400,000 shares.

Brokerage explanations for the day's slumberous performance were similar to those advanced on recent set-backs. Among these was the apparent desire of speculative forces to keep decks reasonably clear pending possible European developments. Also some inclined to lighten positions until more definite signs of a spring business upturn can be seen. With Monday a holiday, many commission house customers remained away from the boardrooms.

WATCH THE GIRLS MARRY MILLIONAIRES
The skinny, scrawny, pepless girls don't stand a chance, but watch the healthy, cheerful girl with the attractive curves —she generally gets her man, be he a millionaire or otherwise. If YOUR romance is spoiled by poor health and skinny, scrawny hollows, this may be due to malnourishment (a lack of certain minerals in the daily diet). So make this test with Kelpamalt.
The body's chemical processes that change digested food into rich blood, firm flesh, require certain minerals . . . elements often deficient in the daily diet. KELPAMALT helps provide these nutritional elements, without which good nourishment may be wasted. Its iron, copper, calcium, plus its natural seaplant iodine, help the system get the real good out of food.
Start Kelpamalt today. Thousands report they eat, sleep, look and feel better and add solid extra pounds when they are underweight. Money back if you are not satisfied with results. Kelpamalt costs but little to use.

Pope Proclaimed Many New Cardinals In Late Years

The College of Crdinals

As age and infirmities crept upon Pius XI he made effort to "leave everything in order" for his successor. One of the situations which engaged his attention was the dwindling, in the later years of his reign, of the College of Cardinals.

Previous to 1929 he had created about a dozen cardinals, naming them chiefly as part of his policy of strengthening the outposts of the church. Thus one of the first on his list was Enrico Cardinal Gasparri, papal nuncio to Brazil and a nephew of the famous Pietro Cardinal Gasparri who was one of the outstanding papal secretaries of state.

Americans Given Red Hats

On March 24, 1924, Pius raised United States representation in the college to four by bestowing red hats upon Archbishop Patrick Hayes of New York and George Mundelein of Chicago. Hayes was the successor of John Cardinal Farley but Mundelein's was the first cardinalate west of the Alleghanies. Their American colleagues in the college were Cardinals O'Connell of Boston and Dougherty of Philadelphia.

Pius added two to the college in 1925, four in 1927 and six in 1929. Five more were created June 30, 1930, and seven on March 13, 1933. But death took its toll of the princes of the church so rapidly that by December 16, 1935 they numbered only 48, whereas the authorized total was 70.

On that date Pius proclaimed 20 new cardinals, the most sweeping increase in modern times. This brought the list to 68 and he filled it on June 15, 1936, by elevating two aged associates of his librarian days. It was the first time in many years that the church had possessed its full roster of cardinals.

But within 18 months nine deaths again had reduced the membership. Six of these vacancies were filled on December 13, 1937, bringing the list to 67 at the start of 1938. That year saw the passing of Hayes and several European cardinals and at its end the cardinals totaled 63.

The Personality of Pius

The human side of Pius XI was revealed in varied ways. His bent for research was not confined to musty tones and dusty manuscripts but extended to the natural world. Besides being a mathematician of parts, he was interested in science and exploration and, in his younger days, gained a reputation as a mountain climber.

He believed modern science had confirmed the Bible miracles and saw no legitimate conflict between it and religion.

It was while he was prefect of the Ambrosiana library in Milan that he developed his fondness for mountaineering. The arrival of vacation time was the signal for donning mountain breeches and hob-nailed boots, taking a knapsack and alpenstock and going far up among the peaks. He knew the heights of Switzerland as well as those of Italy.

He was an active member of the Italian Alpine club and contributed many pamphlets describing his wanderings. Many of those pamphlets have remained authoriative on paths and general information for the Alpine climbers.

The height of his prowess was reached when he discovered a new path for the ascension of Monte Rosa, one of the most difficult climbs in the Italian Alps. He alone knew this path until one day he saw some Italian soldiers struggling to get supplies to the top of the mountain, scaling from one dangerous rock to another. He showed them a better and easier way along his path. The soldiers christened the path "Via Ratti" and it has been known by that name ever since.

On his elevation to the tiara, the Italian Alpine club sent him a congratulatory telegram, which he prized highly. He always cherished a bit of rock sent to him by English climbers from the topmost point reached in an attempt to scale Mount Evesret.

Nobile, Scapegoat, Befriended

He gave moral and spiritual support to many scientific undertakings including the ill-fated 1928 North Pole flight of General Umberto Nobile in the dirigible Italia. When Nobile was "broken" by the Italian government after his expedition ended in disaster, Pius received him at the Vatican, bestowed a medal and praised him for his contribution to knowledge.

Pius was a linguist and often greeted visitors in English, German or French.

His list of callers was varied. He received Gene Tunney and Johnny Dundee, American prizefighters; Ignace Paderewski, Polish patriot and musician; King Fuad of Egypt, head of a Moslem nation; the crown prince of Japan, destined to rule over a people devoted chiefly to Shintoism and Buddhism, and King George and Queen Mary of England, crowned as defenders of a Protestant faith. He received homage from King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain and from King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium.

Simple personal tastes (it was related that he shaved himself with an American safety razor), regular exercise and his youthful mountain climbing combined to give Pius a sturdy body. On May 14, 1930, for example, when he was within a few days of his 73rd birthday, he climbed to the dome of St. Peter's to inspect cracks which had developed in the structure.

He was not afraid of modernism. Besides the Vatican City radio station, he installed loud speakers in St. Peter's so that all might hear him when the vast edifice was packed on great occasions. He authorized the taking of motion pictures of himself and attendants in ceremonial rites and encouraged baseball and other games within the precincts of Vatican City.

It was unusual for the head of the church to appear as an author of secular works, but soon after he had become pope, Pius published a volume on his earlier experiences as a mountain climber. And he paid no attention to the somewhat astonished comment that followed.

Practiced Ancient Rites

But he linked the old with the new and revived several ancient customs, especially when he felt they would encourage loyalty to the church and emphasize the concept of its divine and mystic origin.

Thus he made 1925 a "holy year" and, in accordance with old rites, battered at the closed door of St. Peter's as the opening ritual of the 12-month observance. At the end of that time he as ceremoniously closed and sealed the sacred portal.

Special ceremonies too marked 1929, set aside as a jubilee year in honor of his half century in the priesthood. Pilgrimages from all sections of the Catholic world were part of the celebration. In the 12 months he made more than 200 addresses to 1,200,000 pilgrims.

The observance coincided with the quinquennial visits of most of the American bishops and he heard with plesaure their reports that in the face of the economic crash, people were turning to the church in greater numbers than in the great boom times.

His priestly devotion was marked. His day began and ended in his private chapel, just off his bed room in the plainly-furnished suite which he occupied in the 1,000-room papal palace. It was on record that December 24, 1936, when he was bedridden, was the first time since his ordination 57 years before, that he had failed to celebrate a Christmas Eve mass. Instead he listened to services read by his secretary and audible through the open door of the chapel.

To See Layton Play Tiff Denton

This afternoon and tonight Johnny Layton, former three-cushion billiard champion, who says Sedalia is the "Capital of the World," is playing two exhibition matches in Kansas City with Tiff Denton at Kling and Allen billiard rooms.

Charles J. McEniry, proprietor of the Smoke House, and Frank Hugelman, proprietor of Hugie's, motored to the city this morning to watch Layton in action.

McEniry formerly managed Layton during his early billiard career and Frank was one of his closest hunting mates while the champion visited the old home town.

Wheat Prices About Steady

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Wheat prices held about steady much of the time today, aided by buying attributed to mills.

After an early show of firmness that held values up as much as ½ cent at times, the market declined late in the session to ⅜ cent below yesterday's finish. Independent weakness in the corn market contributed to the downturn in Wheat.

Wheat closed ⅛ cent lower to ¼ cent higher, May and July 67½c to 67⅝c; corn unchanged to a cent lower, May 48½c to 48¼, July 49½c to 49⅜c; oats ¼ to ⅜ cent lower, May 27¾c; soy beans ⅛ cent higher, May 79⅜c; rye unchanged, May 44¾c; lard 5 cents lower.

Debates Held At S-C High School

The intermural debates of the Smith-Cotton debaters was held Thursday at 7 o'clock.

The debates were held in the high school class rooms with the majority of the members of the speech class taking active parts either in debating or as officials of the debate.

The winning teams were composed of the following: James Van Wagner and O. L. Scott, affirmative; Jerry Waite and Harold Barrick, affirmative; Joe Dotson and Carl Speiser, affirmative; Dorothy Herrick and Lou Anamosa, negative; Louis Whitbeck and Jack Steele, negative; Zepora Wasserman and Virginia Burrus, affirmative.

The judges for the debates were Misses Hazel Gray and Margaret Mellett, Ernest Schlichting, Elmer Headlee, Bill Ross, L. H. Durley, Sr.,

The officials were Marvin Crutcher, James Luckett, Max Cassing, Patty Prewett and Lorraine Spaits.

The junior class was first in having the largest percentage of debaters win, the sophomores second and the seniors third.

Bothwell Hospital Notes

E. L. Busker, 1203 West Main street, and Mrs. Jessie Wolf, Kansas City, were admitted for medical treatment.

Miss Bernice Acker, of Windsor, was admitted for surgery.

President Has Cold

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was advised by his physician to stay away from his office again today because of a nose cold. The usual Friday morning press conference was called off.

Five Minor Bills Passed By House

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 10—(AP)—The house passed five minor bills in a one-hour meeting today, bringing its total for the session to six and adjourned for the weekend.

One measure approved 98 to 0 would extend the time for filing of state soldier's bonus applications to Dec. 31, 1940.

Cities over 25,000 could levy a tax for free band concerts under another bill passed. The present law limits the tax to cities under that population.

A bill of Rep. Don Grafton, (D) Joplin, requiring voters in Springfield and Joplin to register under those cities' permanent registration laws every four years, was passed.

Circuit court terms in Nodaway county would be held the first Monday in January, the first Monday in April and the fourth Monday in September under another bill approved affecting the fourth judicial circuit. Court now meets in that county the second Monday in January, the second Monday in April and the first Monday in September.

The bills passed now go to the senate.

An even hundred bills were introduced in the house today but 99 were revision bills prepared by the statute revision commission which worked last year under appointment of Gov. Lloyd C. Stark.

The house adjourned on motion of Rep. Morris Osburn (D) Shelbyville, out of respect to Pope Pius XI.

Sunday school 9:30 a. m. A. M. Hoffman, superintendent. Young folks 4:00 p. m. A cordial invitation and friendly welcome to these services. Go to church somewhere.

IMMANUEL EVANGELICAL AND REFORMED, Fourth and Vermont. Rev. Oscar J. Rumpf, pastor. Church school at 9:30. Miss Anna Huffman, superintendent. Morning worship service at 10:45 with the pastor speaking on the theme, "Race Relations," and the topic, "The Tower of Babel." The choir will sing "Great Shall By Thy Peace," by Roberts. Come worship with us.

FIRST METHODIST, Osage and West Fourth. Quincy R. Wright, minister. Church school opens at 9:30 each Sunday morning with O. E. Palmer, general superintendent, and departmental leaders in each department. The Men's Bible class will have charge of the worship service in the adult department, with Walter Dittmer, president of the class in charge. The Epworth League Institute which includes all the Methodist churches in the Sedalia sub-district will begin in a dinner session this evening, with Adolf Friedrich of Kansas City as dinner speaker. The institute classes will be held immediately following the dinner and will run through Saturday and Sunday. Dr. A. A. Halter, district superintendent of the Sedalia district will preach the Institute sermon at 10:45 Sunday morning and the Charles Wesley choir under the leadership of Mrs. A. R. Beach will sing. The Lincoln Day service will be held Sunday evening at 7:30. The following numbers will be furnished by a double male quartet, "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," "Steal Away," and "I've Been Listenin'." Burney Morriss of the Smith-Cotton high school will be the soloist for the service and will sing, "I Want To Be a Christian." The members of the double quartet are: I. H. Reed, Lee Peabody, W. I. Thomas, Charles Maggard, Dr. A. G. Hausam, Paul Hausam, Ed Zoellig and Burney Morriss. The general theme of the service will be "Sold On The Block." There will be two children on the platform with the pastor and three different bidders from the congregation will bid on the children. The pastor will refuse the bids because the church and Christ offers so much more than any other bidder. The service will be of interest to those who are thinking of the development of youth, and those who are familiar with the enemies of youth. The mid-week and Ash Wednesday service will be held on Wednesday evening at 7:30. Plans for the Church Crusade are under way and will be discussed at various meetings. The topic under discussion at the mid-week meeting will be "Accepting the Challenge."

Functions of the Church

The church is not made up of people who think they are better than the rest, but of people who know they ought to be better than they are, and belong to the church because it is trying to help them to be better.

The church is not made up of people who think they are perfect, but of people who are sure that they have found the perfect ideal in Jesus.

The church is not made up of people who think they never make any mistakes, but of people who have recognized their wrong-doing and have joined the church in the belief that it will help them avoid wrong doing.

The church is not trying to tell people what they MUST believe, but it is trying to tell them what they can believe, and what a difference it will make in their life if they do believe these things.

The church is not trying to take the joy out of life, but it is trying to put a joy into every man's life that will last through all of time.

"Let the people be called to penitential prayer," urges the Federal Council of Churches in one paragraph of its "Message for Race Relations Sunday:" "We have despised races that we have judged to be inferior to our own. We have come far short of the glory of Him who 'rejoiced in the faith of a Syrian woman and a Roman soldier, and welcomed the Greeks who sought Him, and suffered His cross to be carried by an African.'" Sunday, February 12, 1939, will mark the seventeenth annual observance of the Race Relations Sunday.

Soviet Russia is disturbed over a habit which multiplied thousands of her people have, of saying, "Thank God." It is said that men and women in all walks of life use it. One of their newspapers in commenting on it recently said, "Is it not high time to cleanse our language of these outworn expressions?" God is still in the thinking and the speech of the common people of Russia.

Dr. Harry Rimmer, pastor of a Duluth, Minn., Presbyterian church, and president of the Science Research Bureau, is still offering one hundred dollars to anyone who can prove a scientific error in the Bible. Recently in a Christian Endeavor Convention in Kansas City, Mo., he repeated the offer. He stated that in the past fifteen years, more than 2,000 persons had answered his challenge in an effort to win the money, but all alike have had to admit that proof was still forthcoming.

HOW CAN ONE HAVE THE SENSE OF GOD'S PRESENCE?

Reverend Leslie Weatherhead, in dealing with this subject, declares that one needs to learn to sense the presence of the Lord in four ways; first in an inward strengthening of personality so that one may feel that he can meet any situation—by seeing how Christ after his resurrection in moments of surprise was with his disciples. By exercising faith in the risen Lord, the disciples' experience may be ours.

Second, Christ's presence is recognized in a transcendent happiness, a kind of an infectious gaiety of spirit which others catch from those who knew his presence in their hearts.

Third, Christ's spirit is seen in a deep serenity of spirit and inward peace, a mark which Jesus left as an assurance of his presence. All is well when one is in the hands of a living God.

Fourth, there is an outgoing love. The presence of Jesus meant, and means, a love that goes out to all men, to our critics and enemies; not merely loving the lovable, not only seeing what is lovable, but, seeking no reward, a love is creative enough to make something lovable in all men, a love which changes coldness, bitterness, and cynicism into warmth and sweetness and radiance.

Ku Klux and Kiwanis

At a four-day Council meeting in Chicago of all international officers and district governors of the Kiwanis organization to plan 1939 activities, past president of "Kiwanis International," Harper Gatton, pointed out that the "Ku Kluxers" and the Kiwanis both started out about the same time in 1915. The "Klan" taught hatred for the Negro, the Catholic and the Jew. It rose to a membership of some four million, gathered into an empire of hate and persecution. Kiwanis taught brotherly love and went into thousands of communities bringing business and professional men together for community and welfare service. "Today the Klan has virtually disappeared; its strength is gone, its political domination is spent. But Kiwanis is stronger than ever." Mr. Gatton added, as reported in Chicago Daily News, "Intolerance, racial prejudice, and persecution are the causes of the world's present ills. Until they are brought to an end western civilization cannot hope to survive military aggression and war."

The Churches and The Nations

"The main business of the church is to make free men. . . . Modern democracy is the result. . . . Therefore every patriotic citizen should support the church. . . . The privilege of suffrage carries inescapable obligation to vote and assume duties in the state. Conflict between church and state arises when either denies or abridges freedom; there is no such thing as coercion in patriotism or religion." Democracy best expresses the genius of Christianity. "Reactionary and belligerent peoples must be persuaded. When necessary, marshaled world opinion for justice must be enforced by the concerted refusal of liberty-loving nations to traffic with warmakers." "In the Christian conception of God there is not only nothing alien but something undeniably necessary to human nature." Herein lies the hope of its "world-wide acceptance." "Individual Christians should forget their fancied insignificance, and labor for the better day."—The Christian Century.

Morgan and son, William Eirl, Eula Mae Pratt, Grace Farley, Mayme Snavely, Helen Farley, Martha Taylor, Eva Mae Pruitt, Winona Hamlin, Ruth Snavely, Nadyne Pratt,, Dorothy Barrick, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Waters, C. L. Norman, and Rendal McGirk.

Ministerial Alliance To Meet on Monday

The Ministerial Alliance will meet Monday morning at 10 a. m. in the study of the Federated church. All members are asked to be present, especially as this is the last meeting with the Rev. E. L. Baker in the chair as president.

Goldfish pike and salmon are the only fish that do not sleep.

Peter Heals a Lame Man. Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-12 for Sunday, February 12.

Peter and John, faithful to the established program of religion, started to the temple in plenty of time so that they might do good on the way as occasion offered.

V. 1. "Now Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour." Regardless of enemies in the church or of even lack of helpful messages, these two disciples were faithful to the temple service of worship—a good lesson for us.

V. 2. "And a certain man lame from his mother's womb, was carried whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple." There are many lame men (morally and religiously lame) between our homes and the church, which are subjects of moral healing of our Lord. Here is our opportunity of doing good.

V. 3. "Who, seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked an alms." This man did not realize his greatest need and therefore asked for the lesser gifts God has to offer.

Vs. 4, 5. "And Peter fastening his eyes upon him with John, said, Look unto us. And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them." People go wrong because they look in the wrong direction. Peter had within him the spirit and the power of his Lord to whom real attention was aimed. No one will get very far religiously until due attention was aimed. No one will get very far religiously until due attention is given to such as point Godward.

V. 6. "Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee; in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk." Peter let loose the spirit and the power he possessed, but he made it clear that it was the power of the Lord. Since there were no Christian hospitals then, this was God's method often used.

V. 7. "And he took him by the right hand and lifted him up; and immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength. No one can measure the lifting power of a real Christian handshake. The purpose of this miracle served Peter in getting a better hearing for the gospel of Christ. Emphasis must always be placed on the higher values.

V. 8. "And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God." The new spirit was even better than the new physical strength. He realized that it was God that had made a great change in his life, and he was not ashamed to be a good witness for him.

Vs. 9,10. "And all the people saw him walking and praising God; and they knew that it was he which sat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple; and they were filled with amazement and wonder at that which had happened to him." Here was something that happened which could not well be explained away. It was a fact that brought the public face to face with God. The religious leaders with their followers were now ready to take Peter to task which gave him his opportunity to courageously preach Christ.

V. 8, "And Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel." Peter had a courteous introduction. There is much in the right approach.

Vs. 9, 10. "If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole; be it known to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand before you whole. Note that Peter was filled with the Holy Ghost, the third person of the trinity—not an influence but the promise of the advocate whom Christ now sent. Peter makes it clear that he is on trial not for a misdeed but for a good deed. Note the doctrines that Peter expressed: (1) Jesus Christ is Messiah. (2) He was crucified and raised from the dead. (3) He still lives. (4) His power is still exerted in the world, as in the healing of the cripple. (5) He was the subject of Old Testament prophesy, his being set at nought, and his subsequent triumph being foretold.—Vs. 12.

V. 12. "Neither is there salvation in any other for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved. Here is the climax of the sermon. Salvation from sin is achieved through Christ and through him alone.

Peter Heals A Lame Man. Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-12 for Sunday, February 12.

1. What proof do we have that this healing was miraculous?
2. What purpose did this miracle serve?
3. What can we give helpfully to others besides money?
4. When should one compromise and when not?
5. What does this miracle teach us about the possibility of Christian helpfulness today?

CLERICUS says, "One needs to see to it that his development is well-balanced. A wrong religious emphasis on the intellect, or the emotions, or the will, makes a rationalist, a fanatic, or a formalist. The ideal Christian is one who thinks clearly, feels strongly and acts firmly."

LESSON PRAYER: "We would cultivate the habit of prayer so related to the needs of men that God can use us in lifting others to a higher moral and religious level."

WIT AND WISDOM

If I Were a Dollar Bill:

I'd pray that my boss would take me to church some Sunday and leave me there on that little plate with the velvet cushion which the usher passes around—you know. I think I'd feel so kind of important and "snooty" among those nickels and pennies and buttons and things. I've seen enough filling stations on Sunday to last me for a lifetime anyway; I'd like to look up at a preacher for a change.

• Raising a Family

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

One of the things most necessary to a child's self-respect and happiness is faith in both his parents.

Just as a mother or father suffers through a child, if he disappoints them, the child suffers through a parent. "Extended personality" means that one may be proud, or hurt, through people included in the circle of self.

So it is highly important that parents hold their prestige in the minds and hearts of their children.

This is hard to do if either parent complains about the other to the family. Take father first. He may be a grand fellow, but human enough to have his failings. The youngsters think him simply tip-top, and they tell all the kids that their daddy could lick any other daddy on the street.

Maybe not exactly this, but they like to brag about what he can do. Daddy is king of their country and they would die rather than let on that he sometimes showed two clay feet under the toga of divinity.

Mother Emphasizes Feelings

Well, mother has no such illusions. She knows that he is not perfect. She is inclined to exaggerate his shortcomings to herself. Maybe he likes a game with the boys and spends some dimes occasionally that he can't account for. Maybe he just smokes more than the budget warrants.

Mother in a fit of impatience may say, "What does your father care, if you have holes in your shoes? He is so selfish that he thinks only of himself. He isn't the fine man Mr. Smith is. Mr. Smith sees that his children have the latest and best of everything. Why, I never get a new thing. Nor do you poor children."

Once may not do much damage. Two might not do much more, for children get used to hearing complaints. But in time it can happen that the gears won't slip. The idea will take hold and stick. Little by little this great friend of theirs becomes a doubtful character in their minds. They learn to blame him for any disappointment that comes along.

Maybe it is not money but some quality that mother takes exception to. She may say that dad is lazy, perhaps, or a coward, or any number of things. The dripping water will make its mark eventually.

On the other hand, father himself may come home and speak his mind about the way mother manages. She goes out too much; she is neglecting her family. She does this and that and the other thing. He is only letting off steam and bad humor, but after a while the children may take notice.

This is not to say that parents are perpetually innocent or that they don't invite criticism. They often risk the faith and respect of children by faults too apparent to need any comment. Children can lose faith without a word being said.

However, it is best for each parent to boost the stock of the other, in the children's eyes. This creates something very valuable. They will not only hold their heads higher, but they will be happier.

Nicaragua will issue a series of five air mail stamps March 31 featuring portraits of the late Will Rogers. The stamps, coming out on the eighth anniversary of the disastrous earthquake in Nicaragua, will show a view of the quake region and Rogers landing in the country, Rogers with the U. S. Marines, Rogers at the Pan-American Airway building and Rogers at the aviation field.

Occupational Therapy An Excellent Field For Teachers and Psychologists

(Third of a series of three articles on occupational therapy.)

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

As you go through a hospital of occupational therapy, you will find some patients working at benches doing carpentry and using planes, screw drivers, saws and hammers. You will find other patients doing metal work. Some will be weaving. Some will be making toys.

Others will be learning book binding, printing, pottery, wrought iron, willow or cement work. And not all of it is work! Frequently, games like pool or billiards will accomplish the same motions that may be accomplished by work and educational courses.

The person who enters the profession of occupational therapy must be not only a teacher of motions but a psychologist. It is necessary to keep in mind the former occupation of the patient and to select a type of work with which he is familiar. If, however, the tissues have been damaged so that there is no opportunity for the patient to return to his former occupation, it will become necessary to direct the training to employment in a different field.

Occupational therapy is scientific. Records are kept of the work from day to day so that the therapists will know exactly how much improvement is made and thus with continued guidance of the physician be able to determine whether or not the methods used are successful.

A person who is left-handed must be taught left-handed work, but if the left hand is so injured that it seems impossible to continue with the left hand, the right hand must be taught to function also. Moreover, always the occupational therapist must keep in mind the fact that he or she is working not with well people but with sick people.

All of the work must be definitely related to the sickness of the patient and the conditions that are desired to be reached, also those which obtain at the moment.

With approximately 1,000 trained occupational therapists in the U. S. today, and a total of 1,500, including those partially trained, the field is still one in which there is great opportunity for those interested in the care of the sick in a field closely allied to the medical profession.

Normally, Ontario is the chief source of the honey production of the Dominion of Canada, but in 1937, Manitoba came first in this respect.

SHERIFF'S SALE IN PARTITION

By virtue and authority of an order of sale in partition, issued from the office of the clerk of the circuit court of Pettis County, Missouri, dated the 2nd day of December, 1938, and to me directed in favor of Third National Bank, of Sedalia, Missouri, as Trustee of the Daniel I. Wilcox Estate, B. J. Minnier, Flora Elliott, Wynona Elliott, Laura Whiteman, Lillian E. Jared, Stella M. Lower, and Mary Millicent Duly as plaintiffs, and against James J. Donnelly defendant, and it appearing to the court that the plaintiffs are entitled to the relief prayed for in their petition, ordered that the property described in plaintiff's petition be sold by the sheriff of Pettis County, Missouri, as provided by law in such cases. Now, therefore, in order to comply with the terms of said order of sale, I, the undersigned sheriff of Pettis County, Missouri, shall proceed to sell said real estate, so ordered sold, and situated in Pettis County, Missouri, to-wit:

The Southeast Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section number Twenty-five (25), and the Northeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter, and the North Half of the Southeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of Section number Thirty-six (36), all in Township number Forty-seven (47) North, of Range number Twenty-one (21) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, except the following described land: Land conveyed to D. C. and J. M. Newland by Deed recorded in Book 85 at Page 533, to T. S. Payne by Deed recorded in Book 109 at Page 328, to Michael McNutt by Deeds recorded in Book 110 at page 453 and Book 127 at page 599, and to William K. Green by Deed recorded in Book 116 at page 244 of the Recorder's Office of Pettis County, Missouri;

Also, one acre of ground described in farm lease recorded in Book "D" Page 449 of the Recorder's Office of Pettis County, Missouri described as follows: The tract of One (1) Acre located along the public highway just north of Newland Store on the J. W. Hammond Farm and more particularly described as being situated in the Southeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of Section number Thirty-six (36), Township number Forty-seven (47), Range number Twenty-one (21);

n Pettis County, Missouri, and I will on Saturday, the 11th day of February, 1939, between the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the west front door of the court house, in the city of Sedalia, Pettis County, Missouri, and while the circuit court is in session, sell the above described real estate at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in hand in order to comply with the said order of sale.

Dated this 20th day of January 1939.
M. L. MARLIN,
Sheriff of Pettis County, Missouri.
Montgomery and Salveter, attorneys.

SHERIFF'S SALE
Under Deed of Trust

Because of default in the payment of taxes and indebtedness secured by deed of trust executed by Leo P. Staus and Willa F. Staus, his wife dated April 1, 1924 and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of Pettis County, Missouri, in Book 301, Page 392, conveying unto Jesse R. Clark, Jr., and The St. Louis Union Trust Company as Trustees,

The Southeast Quarter (SE¼) except ten acres described as follows: Beginning at the Southwest corner of the Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section Twenty-two (22), thence north forty (40) rods, thence east twenty (20) rods, thence southeast in a straight line to a point sixty (60) rods east of beginning, thence west to place of beginning, all lying in Township Forty-four (44), Range Twenty-one (21), containing 150 acres

In Pettis County, Missouri, the legal holder of the written obligations and claims secured by said deed of trust has declared the whole thereof due and payable in accordance with the terms of said deed of trust, and has, by written instrument duly filed for record, requested me, the undersigned, to foreclose said deed of trust: Therefore, I will in response to said request, made in accordance with the terms and provisions of said deed of trust and under the authority therein provided, sell said real estate at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, on Saturday the 25th day of February 1939, between the hours of 9:00 o'clock A. M. and 5:00 o'clock P. M., at the West Front door of the Court House in Sedalia, Pettis County, Missouri to satisfy said indebtedness and the cost of executing this trust, or so much thereof as the proceeds of such sale may be sufficient to pay.

W. L. MARLIN,
Sheriff of Pettis County, Missouri.

Bells Tolling Reveals Chair At St. Peter's Is Vacant

By MILO M. THOMPSON
Associated Press General Executive For Europe

ROME, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Reaction of the city of Rome to its biggest news story of a generation surprised visiting Americans accustomed in their own land to being awakened by shouting of extras and made quickly abuzz with excitement.

It was more than an hour after the death of Pope Pius XI in his apartment above and beyond the Colonnades at St. Peters before the slow, deep rhythmic tolling of Vatican City bells announced to early risers that the chair of St. Peter was vacant.

The age-old procedure affirming the death was necessary before there could be an official announcement. More hours elapsed before notices came to the doors of churches and papal flags were flown at half staff.

At the time the Pope breathed his last, the narrow cobbled streets of the ancient city, damp with the mist of night, reflected dully street lights and the pale light of the pewter colored moon in its last quarters.

A nun stood silently in the shadow of an arched doorway with calm eyes toward the Vatican as if breathing a prayer for life of the pontiff who already was dead.

An aged, bearded priest toiled slowly up the steep side-walk as if on an errand of mercy. A few handcarts were being trundled along. A laggard car or two hummed over the almost deserted boulevards.

Rome roused herself normally and learned the news first by word of mouth.

Prayers Are Offered

Those who watched in the shadow of St. Peter's saw few variations from normal. As the grey dawn came, a flow of Catholic priests and other worshipers to the great church began.

Many who had come to pray for the pontiff's life and strength learned the news and remained to pray for peace of their holy father.

As daylight came, the Piazza San Pietro was dotted with groups of faithful, priests in varicolored garb reading to one another first copies of newspapers which had appeared silently, and were as silently and even more quickly snatched up at the stands just outside the borders of Vatican City.

Wide-eyed tourists mingled with priests and stared at the increased complement of civil police outside the several Vatican gates and at the resplendently garbed Swiss guards glimpsed within portals which had been closed to most visitors.

Inside St. Peter's there were no great crowds, though hundreds moved in and out of its vastness, kneeling in groups at several altars and the tomb of Saint Peter.

They passed silently through the aisles and among half-placed decorations intended for weekend celebrations of signing of the lateran accord and the anniversary of accession of the Pope.

Some were misty-eyed as they contemplated the vacant papal throne.

Regular morning masses in the chapel of the choir intoned by many strong melodious male voices, seemed to take on new significance this morning. Many worshippers who did not enter knelt at the doors of the chapel in which the body will lie. There were scores, too, at the portals of the chapel of the sacrament opposite.

Death of the Pope made no difference to the movements of taxicabs and horse-drawn carriages which lined up as usual at the entrance to the Piazzas. Sellers of souvenirs and religious objects were there in force, putting forward especially their pictures and mementoes of Pius XI.

Dignitaries of the church arrived in a limousine.

An aged crone, carrying a box of coals to warm her hands, pressed a wrinkled face against the iron bars to peer into the Vatican entrance.

A woman went by stolidly balancing a bundle on her head. A group of workmen with tools in handbags left the Vatican in a group. A body of guardsmen marched by, some lifting eyes to windows of the papal palace rising above the grey pillars.

The shuffle of feet, tolling of deep-throated bells and the flashing fountains were the only continuing sounds. This was the aspect of the Piazza San Pietro within a few hours after the death of the Pope.

Had Premonition

Robert West's premonition may come true. He said when he helped build Missouri's lethal gas chamber at Jefferson City that he feared he would die in it. A year and a half later West (above) was convicted in St. Louis of murder and sentenced to die in the chamber.

Program Before Lone Star P.T.A.

The Lone Star P. T. A. met Wednesday night with the president, Mrs. J. J. Kehl presiding. The meeting was opened by the audience singing "The Old Rugged Cross," after which Miss Sussie Page read the legend of the song.

The following program was presented:

Songs, "A Little Swiss Lass," "Sun Down" and "A Bold Adventure" by the Horace Mann school's boys choir.

A reading, Jackie Mock.

Song, "A Valentine for Mother," five girls.

Piano duet, "Sylvan Waltz," Helen and Vera Kathryn McFatrick.

Reading, "Little Boy Blue," George Robert McFatrick.

Rhythm band, "Pop Goes the Weasel" and "Onward Christian Soldiers," by the school.

Play, "David's Bold Attempt," Harold and Harry Kehl, Leloy, Russel and Helen Cleo McFatrick.

Songs, "Bronco Boy," "The Old Barn Dance," by the boys choir.

Solo, "Italian Street Song," Miss Frances Myers.

Play, "Managing a Husband," Mr. Bosser, Charles Garrett; Mrs. Bosser, Elsie Garrett; Rev. Willis, Chester Garrett; Mrs. Willis, Nellie Garrett.

Songs, "Pale in the Amber West" and "Song of Peace," by the boys choir.

After the program Valentines were distributed and refreshments served.

The next meeting, which will be family night, will be held on March 1.

Car Damaged

Damage was done to the left front fender and wheel of a 1937 Pontiac sedan driven by Charles McEniry, Jr., when the car jumped the curb west of the intersection of Dal-Whi-Mo and Sixth street about 10:45 o'clock Thursday night.

Franco Prepares A New Offensive

Premier Negrin Over Boundary Into France

Attack Planned In Madrid Area

Masses of Arms Are Seized by The French

BURGOS, Spain, Feb. 9—(AP)—Spanish insurgents today announced landing of their troops on the Balearic island of Minorca, for whose surrender negotiations with the government had been proceeding aboard the British cruiser Devonshire.

The landing on the strategic island was said to have followed an uprising of Spanish government troops who gained mastery over a large part of its area.

The announcement said the insurgents landed at Ciudadela, on the west coast of Minorca, and were joined by units of the local garrison which had risen against the government authorities.

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 9—(AP)—Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco today began withdrawal of large numbers of troops from Catalonia, where his conquest is virtually complete, in preparation for a major offensive against the Madrid-Valencia zone still remaining in government hands.

Insurgent forces including Italian legionnaires who have been pushing north toward the French frontier were taken out of the combat line for quick transfer south to lines facing the central region, comprising one-fourth of Spain.

Military observers said Franco apparently was speeding organization of his forces for attack against Madrid and Valencia, where white-haired General Jose Miaja is commander and virtual dictator.

Countering reports Miaja had been involved in negotiations for a separate peace with Generalissimo Franco, members of Premier Juan Negrin's official party said the premier and Miaja had been in communication by radio and were "closer than ever" as far as policy was concerned.

They said reports that Miaja had broken with Negrin and entered separate peace talks were part of a "French-British" attempt to force the Spanish government to surrender unconditionally.

If any such negotiations were undertaken, these officials said, they already had been broken off.

There were reports, however, negotiations were now underway between officials of the government-held island of Minorca and a Spanish insurgent representative taken there by the British cruiser Devonshire.

May Launch Mass Attack

The reports said if the envoy's terms were rejected Franco might launch a mass attack in an effort to take the strongly armed Mediterranean base.

Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez del Vayo, the government's spokesman, declared "the fight is far from over."

That was believed to indicate that Negrin would move his government to Valencia or Madrid.

The stream of civilian refugees into France had almost dried up with about 250,000 persons estimated to have entered France since the fall of Barcelona January 26.

The thousands of troops who have crossed the border waited in concentration camps and the civilians at shelters in the interior for settlement of one of the greatest refugee problems in modern times.

Masses of arms and munitions seized by French authorities were understood to have been taken as part payment for maintenance of the refugees, the rest to come from Bank of Spain gold on deposit in France.

Possibly Urge Surrender

PARIS, Feb. 9—(AP)—An informant close to the foreign office said today the French government considers the republican government of Spain is "no longer in existence," since government Premier Juam Negrin entered France yesterday.

Vote Funds For Dies Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The house voted today to give the Dies committe on unAmerican activities $100,000 to continue its investigation.

A resolution providing the fund was approved on a voice vote which sounded almost unanimous.

Chairman Warren (D-NC) of the accounts committee presented the money resolution to the house, asserted he personally favored a smaller fund, but "we gave them $100,000 so there would be no future alibi."

New Dairy Bill Is Presented

All Standards Are Included In Measure

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 9.—House bill No. 232, introduced in the Missouri Legislature on Wednesday by Representatives Jack, Still, Taylor, Brown, Hamlin, Gladish, Kitt, Haring, Elliott, Montgomery, Campbell, Melborn, Reed and Stewart, revises the dairy law in article 5, chapter 8, R.S., 1929, as amended 1933, repealing 27 sections and enacting 37 new sections.

The new dairy bill, which deals exclusively with existing law and repeals and revises all the old dairy law except that it leaves undisturbed the following sections: Section 12,408 to 12,-415, including "filled milk" law; sections 12,418 and 12,420, regulating cheese labeling; false testimony section 12,427; sections 12,-433 to 12,457, including oleomargarine law, renovated butter section, milk-cream can law, and tuberculosis law of 1921. This bill also leaves unrepealed section 7204 granting cities and towns the right to control their own local milk supply by ordinance.

The dairy bill is the result of several months of sincere investigation by the Missouri Dairy Industries Council, an open forum of dairy breeders, dairymen, distributors, processors and consumers. The Commission of Agriculture and the Department of Agriculture staff endorse the bill, and members of the staff of the dairy department of the College of Agriculture commend its principles.

The cream grading and posting of prices with differential sections closely follow the Iowa, Minnesota and Kansas laws, which protect the small producer by insuring that he shall get the same returns as the larger producer at same place on same day. The present dairy law requires that cream be bought and sold on similar grades.

The bill is drawn in modern style, with 63 definitions and standards, including all the dairy standards that have been adopted by the United States Department of Agriculture up to this date. Instead of leaving the administrative requirements to be formulated later, the essential regulations are incorporated into this bill, which is in accord with the laws and practices of the larger dairy states with which Missouri must daily compete.

The annual licensing provisions are the same $2.00 rate as the present law for cream and milk stations, and includes milk plants at the $2.00 rate. The only new licensing is $25.00 for a dairy manufacturing plant and a $5.00 license for field superintendents of creameries, both of which have been approved by the butter and cheese associations.

Since Missouri annually produces eighty million pounds of creamery butter and is increasing in the production of other dairy products, it has become necessary to revise the old dairy law enacted in the 'teens, to improve the sanitary quality and public health standards, so that Missouri-made dairy products may hold their own in the markets of the nation.

Bothwell Hospital Notes

George Thomas, of Fristoe, was admitted for medical treatment.

John Kroll, Knob Noster, temporarily in Sedalia making an audit of the state income reports, entered the hospital Wednesday afternoon, suffering with a severe cold.

Charles Horwitz, of Providence, R. I., a transient in the city, became ill while here and is receiving medical treatment.

W. F. Berry, of Sweet Springs, was admitted for surgery.

Show a Large Pay-off From Gambling

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 9—(AP)—Payment of $10,000 monthly to Charles Carrolla and three other other persons during two months —50 cents went to the Salvation Army—was noted today on the records of a hearing which grew out of recent gambling raids in Kansas City.

Carrolla's name bulked large at the hearing, Sheriff James L. Williams reading the name ferquently from the "paid out" column of a ledger seized during a gambling raid at the Fortune "skillball" establishment at 39th and Main. That raid, ordered by Circuit Judge Allen C. Southern, set in motion both federal and state investigations of gambling.

Yesterday, as Judge Southern conducted the questioning, Sheriff Williams noted under date of last July 23 the ledger's "paid out" column listed $500 to Carrolla. Carrolla's name was the only one which appeared under that date. For July 29, Sheriff Williams said the ledger recorded that $2,500 was paid out to Carrolla and the same amount to his brother, Frank, to Thomas Lacoco and Katherine Dabinowitz. Other payments to Charles Carrolla read by Sheriff Williams included $500 on August 1 and $2,500 on August 27.

With Judge Southern conducting, Sheriff Williams said the records for money "paid out" showed that both in July and August last year equal payments of $2,500 each were made to Carrolla, his brother Frank, Thomas Lacoco and Katherine Rabinowitz. In addition to those sums, Sheriff Williams said payments of $500 to Charles Carrolla were listed on July 23 and again on August 1.

The sheriff's reading under that date of the paid out item, "Salvation Army, 50 cents," provoded gales of laughter in the courtroom.

Carrolla was an associate of John Lazia, one time north side lieutenant of the T. J. Pendergast Democratic organization and big time gambler. Lazia's attorneys admitted at his trial on charges of income tax law violations that Lazia had won and lost heavily at gambling places. Carrolla was driving Lazia's car when the gambler was ambushed and slain by gangster enemies in 1934.

At the request of the Fortune club's attorney, the hearing was continued until Monday.

The comparative merits of the Fortune's game of bingo and the game of golf figured in cross-examination.

It was explained how the players of bingo toss rubber balls into a glass basket with a wooden rack which has 75 numbered squares.

Attorney Harry Friedberg asked Sheriff Williams, an inveteraie golfer

"Is golf a game of skill or chance?"

"Skill."

"There's no chance in golf?"

"Oh, sometimes a bad player will make a hole-in-one. But I never have."

"Then you still say golf is a game of skill?"

"It takes skill all right."

"And no game you saw that night required no skill?"

Says Expanded Air Corps Greatest Military Need

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—(AP)—An air force which will adequately defend continental United States and the Panama Canal Zone, in view of a plane-building race abroad "more feverish than anything which has yet occurred in naval or land armament," was said today by Maj.-Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, to be the nation's greatest military need.

For the first time since the army's new aerial armament program was submitted to congress, Gen. Arnold discussed it in detail last night before a meeting of the Los Angeles post of the Army Ordnance Association.

Emphasizing it will require two years to complete the program, he said it must be designed for effectiveness at that time, adding:

"And it can be done. Our Aeronautical engineers are equal to, if not better, than those of any other nation in the world."

He blamed limited research activities for a "slip backwards" from America's preeminent position in the aviation world a few years ago, with the result that "other nations have produced military airplanes with marked superiority in performance."

Outlining the gocernment's program, Arnold said it called for 5,500 ships, of which only 3,300 would be in service at one time, and two new air bases in the United States, with one each in Panama, Puerto Rico and Alaska.

The problem of training pilots and mechanics, he said, will be carried on by 14 schools accredited by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, by which "we will be able to double or triple our present output of pilots."

He stressed that the nation's military preparedness plan is designed to provide "adequate protection of our shores from land, sea or air, without thought of the use of such forces for aggressive purposes."

Double Attack For Setup On Conservation

Reaches Floor Of Assembly In Two Measures

Offer Defense of Commission

Other Bills Are Offered, One For Sales Tax Hike

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9—(AP)—A double barreled attack on the State Conservation Commission reached the floor of the legislature today in the form of two bills, one of which would cripple, the other destroy the newly created agency.

However another comparatively new state agency, the Highway Patrol, emerged unscathed from its skirmish in last night's busy committee sessions.

A seven to six vote of the house constitutional committee approved a constitutional amendment proposed by Rep. Fred Spearman (R), Miller county, which would abolish the conservation commission by repeal of the 1936 amendment which created it.

A unanimous vote of the senate fish and game committee endorsed a bill by Sen. William Quinn (D), Maywood, which by repeal of all present legislative fish and game regulations would leave the commission without any penalties for enforcement of its conservation measures.

The committee, pointing out that the present laws "are no longer applicable to present conditions" since creation of the commission with power to make its own regulations, suggested writing of "a new chapter" of fish and game regulations and invite the commission to present its recommendations next Tuesday.

The attack on the highway patrol was contained in a bill by Rep. H. P. Lauf (D), Cole county, which would have restricted the patrol's activities to more policing of the highways. The bill was killed by the house roads and highways committee by a vote described as "overwhelming."

For Sales Tax Hike

Anotherd Lauf measure, however, won committee approval. It was his proposed amendment to fix a constitutional minimum of 3 per cent and a maximum of 5 per cent on the state sales tax.

The same committee also approved another constitutional amendment, by Rep. Maurice Schechter (D), St. Louis, to permit use of voting machines in place of ballots throughout the state.

The constitutional amendment enthusiasm extended even to the senate side of the assembly, where a committee approved one proposed by Sen. William Quinn (D), Maywood, which would permit the legislature to earmark any state tax for old age pensions—with the sales tax the likely subject for earmarking.

"It was the original intention, anyway, to levy this sales tax for pensions," Quinn said, "and the time may come when we'll need some permanent source of pensions revenue safe from the schools' one-third cut."

Both of the conservation measures brought strong opposition from more than a score of committee witnesses, who defended the commission and begged it be given "a chance to show what it can do." Ted Butler, Springfield, executive state secretary of the Conservation Federation, and State Conservation Director I. T. Bode led the opponents of the two measures.

Lauf was the only one to speak before committee on his highway patrol bill.

"Let's give back to the local communities and peace officers the right to enforce their own laws," he urged, contending the patrol was not set up as "a general police force."

Lauf charged the patrolmen had been used by the governor, the attorney general and liquor department "in criminal investigations contrary to the 1931 law" and objected "particularly" to gathering evidence by patrolmen for use in Attorney General Roy McKittrick's pending ouster suit against the Cole county prosecuting attorney.

Rep. Suggett L. Edwards (D), Mexico, introduced a bill yesterday to remove from penal board control of the Missouri Training School for Boys at Boonville, the State Industrial Home for Girls at Chillicothe, and the State Industrial Home for Negro Girls at Tipton, and vest the supervision in the Social Security Commission.

Pope Pius XI Dies

Death Comes After Attack of Cardiac Asthma Early Thursday Night

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 10—(Friday)—(AP)—Eighty-one year old Pope Pius, famed through his reign as the Pope of Peace, died at 5:31 a. m. (10:31 p. m. CST Thursday), a Vatican news service announced.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli made the official pronouncement of death, the news service stated.

Cardinal Pacelli and Camillo Cardinal Caccia Dominioni were among the first Cardinals to reach the Papal apartment. Cardinal Dominioni was for many years the pontiff's master of ceremonies.

Was Near 82

Extreme unction was administered about 30 minutes before death came to the Holy Father, who would have been 82 on May 31 and since December, 1936, had weakened gradually after a critical illness—a swelling of the veins which affected his legs.

Dr. Aminta Milana, the Pope's chief doctor, left his own sick bed where he was convalescing from influenza, to be at the bedside of the pontiff he so often had treated.

The Pope had missed his ministrations since he was stricken with cardiac asthma and influenza Tuesday. Dr. Filippo Rocchi had attended the Holy Father.

When the Pope was breathing his last, Saint Peter's square was dark and the sky was moonless.

Guards Doubt News

Swiss guards, patrolling their posts at the great bronze door entrance to Vatican City, were unaware their ruler was near death.

They received their first word of his passing a few minutes after from an Associated Press correspondent on duty at the Vatican.

The guards at first refused to believe the news since they had had no information from their superiors.

At 5:48, the captain of the Papal gendarmes came down from the Papal palace and confirmed the death. He instructed guards on duty to awaken their sleeping comrades in the barracks.

The entire garrison turned out and sleepily donned their brilliant orange, red and blue uniforms while awaiting further orders.

Papal State Tranquil

An hour after the pontiff's death the Papal State was tranquil. Aside from the extra guard on duty, there was no outward sign of the Vatican's mourning.

Papal authorities issued strict orders that no one should be admitted to the Vatican except persons on official duty.

One by one the Cardinals began to arrive and within an hour after the pontiff's death, five had ascended to the private apartment.

Monsignor Alberto Serafini, head of Apostolic Briefs, soon began drawing up the official notarial act of death to be signed by Cardinal Pacelli and the other Cardinals.

Tolling Announces Death

The bells of Rome's 400 churches sounded Angelus as the Vatican was making ready to announce the sorrowful news to the Holy City by tolling the great bells of St. Peters.

The tolling was withheld so sleeping Rome did not know for more than an hour that its spiritual lord was dead.

The pontiff passed away with his nephew, Count Franco Ratti, a few Cardinals, prelates, Dr. Milani and Dr. Filippo Rocchi, and two male nurses at the bedside.

Most were on their knees praying when Dr. Milani announced the Holy Father had breathed his last.

Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, camerlengo or interim ruler of the church, made the official pronouncement of death, with the traditional rite.

Wearing his violet mozzetta and mantelletta or mantel, as if the Pope still lived, he approached the death bed and drew back the white veil that now covered the dead pontiff's face.

Lack Harmony On Nominees

Guffey Choice Is Overlooked By President

WASHINGTON. Feb. 9.—(AP)—In the midst of a bitter quarrel with Virginia's Carter Glass over judgeship appointments, President Roosevelt disregarded another senatorial recommendation today in nominating Francis Biddle of Philadelphia for the federal bench.

In this instance it was one of Mr. Roosevelt's staunchest supporters, Senator Guffey (D-Pa), whose single choice for a vacancy on the third United States Circuit Court was overlooked in favor of Biddle, who was special counsel to the congressional committee which investigated the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Guffey said he had suggested "only one man," Judge Michael A. Musmanno of Pittsburgh.

But unlike the controversy with Glass, when he and his colleague, Senator Byrd (D-Va), declared Mr. Roosevelt's choice "personally offensive" and the senate rejected the nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to the federal district 72 to 9, Guffey did not indicate opposition to Biddle. On the contrary, Guffey said:

"I know Mr. Biddle very well. He is an able lawyer, and in my opinion, will make an excellent jurist."

Biddle is 53. He was born in Paris and was brought to the United States in infancy. was graduated from Groton in 1904 and from Harvard College with honors in 1909. Two years later he won a doctor of laws degree with honors at Harvard. He was secretary to the late Supreme Court Justice Holmes in 1911 and 1912. In 1934 and 1935 he was chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

Delay Action On Allred

A few minutes after the Biddle nomination, Senator King (D-Utah) blocked senate confirmation of former Governor James V. Allred of Texas, named by the President to be a federal judge in Texas.

When Allred's name was called for expected confirmation the Utah Senator asked "that the name go over." This delayed senate action until Monday.

King told reporters he would vote against Allred but would not demand a roll call vote.

The Utah senator said President Roosevelt had ignored the suggestions of the two Texas senators, Connally and Sheppard, in appointing the former governor.

"I've had a large number of letters from Texas objecting to the Allred appointment," King said. adding that he supported the objection of Representative Martin Dies (D-Tex) that Allred was not a resident of the judicial district in which he was appointed.

At the same time the senate confirmed by unanimous consent Michael Ligoe as federal judge in the northern district of Illinois and William J. Campbell to succeed Igoe as United States attorney in the district.

Another judgship appointment today was that of Robert P. Patterson of Garrison. N. Y., to take the place of Judge Martin T. Manton, resigned, on the bench of the third circuit court of appeals at New York.

The resignation of Manton, following charges he received money through loans from litigants before his court, became effective two days ago.

County Turns In $107,353.62 Sales Tax

Pettis County collected $107,-353.62 in sales tax during the year 1938, according to a statement issued by Forrest Smith, state auditor, Jefferson City.

The benefits derived by the county from the sales tax program are: Schools, $59,685.62; old age assistance, $109,151.75; care insane and charity patients, $16,990.91; poor relief, $47,474.49; care of dependent children, $3,-684.00; total benefits sales tax program, $236,986.45; net benefits from sales tax program $129,-632.83; per capita the county, $3.10.

The sales tax collected from all counties in the state was $20,-375,730.69.

Pickets Back To The University Campus.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 9—(AP)—The Columbia Central Labor Council's protest of the non-unionized University of Missouri maintenance department went into its third day today as 8 pickets returned to the campus.

Four pickets were stationed at the school of journalism, where the council seeks to unionize the printers on the Columbia Missourian, daily newspaper published in the school. Previous attempts to organize the Missourian shop failed.

A labor council spokesman said the union has not yet begun negotiations with the board of curators.

One Still Missing In A Utah Snowslide

BINGHAM, Utah, Feb. 9—(AP)—Rescuers digging into the debris of a snow avalanche today brought out a youth wrapped in his bed blankets and alive after being buried all night.

The body of a girl was found, making two known fatalities in the slide that roared down narrow Bingham canyon last night. One man is still missing.

Physicians said the youth, Duchin Thomas, 19, may not live. The snow slide that carried away the top of his home and killed his mother and sister swept him along securely wrapped in his bed clothes, accounting for his survival until reached at 9 a.m. today by copper miners who had dug all night.

The body of his mother, Mrs. Stana Thomas, 41, was found last night. His sister, Helen, 11, was found dead at the same time Duchin was rescued.

Missing is Sam Narich, 42, a boarder in the Thomas home. Searching parties also found the cabin of John Bizjack, 55, half a mile above the Thomas home, was carried away in the terrific slide. No trace of Bizjack was found and fears were felt that he, too, had been killed.

Nineteen persons in all were caught in the mass of snow that hurled down the canyon at Highland Boy, near the famous Bingham open-cut copper mine. All but four either dug themselves out or were quickly rescued. Two of these are in a critical condition.

The avalanche struck two-story houses, cutting off their tops and throwing victims and wreckage against the opposite stone wall of the steep canyon that leads to the mine.

A furious blizzard, blocking Utah's main highways deposited an eight-inch blanket of soggy snow on the precipitous walls of Bingham canyon—walls so sharp and close together Bingham has but one street—its two-mile-long "main drag."

Far above Highland Boy one damp snowbank gave way in the darkness and, cutting a 100-foot swath down the mountainside, tore into two two-story houses, shearing off the tops and hurling the occupants across the road against a retaining wall.

Neighbors who neard the roaring slide hurried to the rescue. Some of the victims were buried for more than an hour before being found.

"The men have been shoveling that snow for hours, but it's so loose and deep that it's hard to get down into it," said Tony Moretti, owner of a small store into which the injured were carried.

Report New Peace Terms Are Offered

Great Britain As A Mediator

Declare Interest Chiefly For The Saving of Lives

LONDON, Feb. 9—(AP)—Great Britain was reported reliably today to have taken new peace terms from the Spanish government to the insurgents after the latter had landed forces on the Balearic island of Minorca.

The insurgent landing occurred after the departure of the British cruiser Devonshire from the island where she had been sent to help negotiate a surrender.

The new peace terms reported offered by Dr. Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier now in France, centered mainly on clemency for his followers.

From Burgos, insurgent capital, word came at the same time that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, while still demanding an unconditional surrender by his foe, promised there would be no reprisals and that only those accused of crimes would be tried.

Spanish government officials abandoned Minorca, leaving aboard the Devonshire, while on the mainland the insurgents reached the French-Spanish border at Le Perthus.

Dr. Negrin had fled to Perpignan, France, but was reported to be determined the Spanish civil war continue in the central zone which includes Valencia and Madrid.

This attitude was interpreted as indicating he had little hope for success of continued peace negotiations.

With the conquest of Catalonia virtually complete, Generalissimo Franco began withdrawing troops in preparation for an offensive against the government-held central zone, which represents one-fourth of the area of Spain.

In Paris, meanwhile, an informant close to the French foreign office said that the French government considered that the republican government of Spain no longer existed, since Dr. Negrin was in France.

British foreign office officials said that 450 "refugees" were aboard the Devonshire when she put out to sea from Port Mahon and acknowledged that they probably were government officials and "other persons wanted by the insurgents."

Minorca, which a British armament firm helped fortify, is the only principle island of the Spanish Balearic group which the government has held since early in the war. The insurgents early in the conflict seized Mallorca, from which Italian airplanes have operated, and Ibiza, other islands of the group.

The 9,750-ton Devonshire put into Port Mahon, Minorca's harbor, Tuesday. This was believed to be a measure to forestall any occupation of the island in which Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Italian or German allies would participate.

Aboard was the Count of San Luis, insurgent military governor of Mallorca, bearing a demand for Minorca's immediate surrender. At Port Mahon government negotiators boarded the cruiser.

It was understood she then put out to sea to permit the parley to go forward on neutral territory.

Agree On Safe Conduct

Negotiations for safe conduct for the Minorca officials then occurred and it was believed here that the insurgent envoy agreed to permit this in return for surrender of the island.

Britain and France have been anxious about the fate of Minorca, which lies on their vital Mediterranean communications lines and is regarded by some as more important strategically than Mallorca.

The Count of San Luis is one of Spain's most distinguished naval officers as well as an aviator and a former civil governor of Seville. British officials stressed that they took him to Minorca on the condition Franco would promise to occupy the island only with Spanish troops. They asserted that Britain was "taking no sides in this dispute."

French officials now hold the Negrin regime has left its own country. Today it moved further north into France as insurgent troops occupied the Spanish part of Le Perthus, which straddles the French-Spanish boundary.

Bring Airplane Sales Into Open

In the furore about sale of military airplanes to France, one thing stands out quite clearly.

The American people are entitled to know what is going on.

If there is one thing that stands contrary to every American principle, it is to have any arrangements or understandings with any country which the people do not know about.

It is all very well to protect military secrets by closed hearings and unrecorded testimony. But it is quite another to have discussions of foreign policy itself in secret.

Can it be true, as reported, that the President pledged the Military Affairs Committee to secrecy in a recent hearing "lest details of the policy involved frighten the public" This is scarcely credible.

What kind of policy is it that would "frighten the public"? Isn't it the same public which in case of war would be asked to wage it unfrightened? Isn't the public made up largely of the same people who would in war be drafted into the army and asked to face an enemy, unfrightened? Isn't the public the same one which might be asked to hide underground at the alarm of air attack, unfrightened?

The American public is not so easily frightened. It is entitled to know the facts of life.

It has not forgotten, for instance, how the diplomacy of Sir Edward Grey had the British in a box when the World War broke out. Grey left them no choice whatever but to enter the war. There was no formal military alliance with France. But close cooperation between the general staffs, military and naval, and many "conversations" between civilian leaders, had made the two countries inter-depenent and closely linked. When war came, the British people had no genuine free choice.

The United States wants no agreements, understandings, or obligation, spoken or unspoken, written or unwritten, that will deny to it a free choice if there is another world war.

This is not to argue that we should refuse to sell airplanes to France. We are already selling war supplies to Japan to help it bomb the independence out of the Chinese. We are selling them to South American countries whose current governments are less than completely democratic. In fact, we are selling them to all comers except to the legal Spanish government.

Probably it is all right to sell planes to France. But we have a right to know to precisely what policies we are being committed. Nothing less than that will sustain popular confidence in those policies.

A gallon of average material from the planet Saturn would weigh less than a gallon of water; therefore, the planet would float.

Some African natives churn the milk from cattle to get butter, which, instead of being eaten is used as hair dressing.

The sun's distance from the earth varies from about 91.5 million miles in January to 94.5 million miles in July.

Most of the so-called "dark days" occasionally reported in the United States are due to forest fires.

Perils Of Staying At Home

In 1938 it was actually more dangerous to stay at home than to go out on the streets on foot or in an automobile.

At least that's a fair decision from the 1938 figures on fatal accidents compiled by the National Safety Council. They show that while 32,000 people were killed in traffic accidents, 32,500 were killed by accidents in their own homes.

For the first time in ten years the home was more deadly than traffic, for while concentrated traffic safety drives were cutting the traffic toll by 7,640, a reduction of 19 per cent, fatal home accidents increased 2 per cent.

The accident prevention work of all the National Safety Council and other agencies proved them a real national asset in the year just passed. For they helped the United States to cut its accident death toll by 10,200 for the year. Further, 700,000 fewer persons were disabled by injuries in 1938 than in 1937.

Sentiment aside, there is a tremendous economic gain for the country in thus cheating death of what he has come to regard as his legitimate prey.

But the toll of accidental death is still a terrible one, and the encouraging results of the 1938 safety campaigns should stimulate everyone to seek even better results this year.

Beware The Martians!

Speaking of the prospect of war—

Mars himself is rushing at the earth at a furious pace, and will approach very close on July 23.

Pretty close, that is. Very close only in the astronomical sense. On July 23 he will come within 36,030,000 miles of the earth. Considering that he is now 176,000,000 miles away, you might call that near approach in July "pretty close" as those things go, out there in inter-stellar space.

That's the time for all those who tumbled out of their houses in terror during the radio "invasion of the Martians" last year to step quietly outside and take a calm look at the red planet whose name is that of the Roman god of war.

Note the date. And don't forget to look under the bed for Martians!

The most brilliant of our amateur diplomats suggests a pair of seed catalogs for two European firebrands. That'll take their minds off war making for a time.

As protection against an enemy, the many legged-millipede is able to roll itself into a sphere.

A. L. Pringle, Retiring, With New Shops Since Opening

A. L. Pringle, general erecting foreman at the Missouri Pacific shops, retired Thursday. He was the only remaining employe, who went to work at the new shops when the first engine came in to be overhauled. It was a 3600 class locomotive.

Mr. Pringle began railroading as an apprentice for the Colorado Midland railroad at Colorado Springs, Colo. After completing his apprenticeship he went to work as a machinist for the D. & R. G. in Denver, in 1902, remaining there until May, 1903, when he went to Helper, Utah, where he was employed as a machinist for the D. & R. G. Western. He remained there until December, 1903, when, as was his custom he went to spend Christmas with his parents in northern Iowa.. While there he was invited to visit "Billie" Metcalf, who was residing in Sedalia, and with whom Mr. Pringle had roomed in Colorado Springs. While visiting Mr. Metcalf he was induced to go to work for the Missouri Pacific at the old shops as a machinist on January 13, 1904. On October 10, 1906 he was transferred from the old shops to the new shops as a machinist. He was gang foreman for about six months in 1905 and on September 15, 1913, was appointed general erecting foreman, which position he has held since that time.

Aside from railroading, Mr. Pringle has been active in many affairs both with the railroad and civic matters. He was chairman of the Machinists Local No. 71 for many years. Recalling some of his experiences he relates that he was a member of the committee that went before the management for a wage increase, and after two weeks of negotiating the rate of pay, which was 33 cents per hour for machinists, was increased to 34 cents. He relates that he took the first train home, afraid that the representatives would change their minds.

At Association Meeting

In 1918 the supervisors, whose rate of pay did not equal that of the machinists, appointed a committee composed of Mr. Pringle, Mr. Gilmore, general round house foreman for the Frisco and Mr. O'Neill, general round house foreman for the Wabash, to attend a meeting of the General Managers' Association in Chicago relative to a wage increase. Shortly after this conference this committee was called to Washington, D. C., to meet with the Labor board, and as a result the supervisors were granted an increase in pay. Some received as much as $90 increase in pay in one month.

At the time Mr. Pringle held the chairmanship of the machinists the territory extended scuth into Texas and to the west coast.

He was Chief Booster for the Missouri Pacific Booster club for five years, and during his term of office the club became known throughout the Misscuri Pacific system for its activities.

He was the first president of the Supervisors club, elected in 1934, was a member of the Sedalia library board for eight years, a member of the Welfare board for four years, served one term on the board of education and one term in the city council 1909-10. He has been active in Boy Scout work and active in the promotion of activities for the young people and children.

During the years Mr. Pringle has been employed by the Missouri Pacific he has made a legion of friends especially among the shop employes who have learned to regard him as a real friend. It is a common saying among shopmen that no one ever heard an unkind word spoken of Al Pringle.

Mr. Pringle and family reside at 722 East Broadway. He has four children, Mrs. Leo Noland, Sedalia; Miss May Pringle, Chicago, Miss Frances Pringle, Mexico, Mo., Mrs. Paul Schwartz, Jefferson City and A. L. Pringle, Jr., of the home address.

Prospects Good For Upturn Of Business In Spring

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A moderate upturn in business this spring was forecast by an overwhelming majority of noted economists in a national poll completed today by the Associated Press.

A similar poll published six months ago accurately predicted the December business upturn high, and significantly showed indecision over the length of the recent recovery.

The economists, chosen to reflect various shades of political and economic views, and to supply geographical, agricultural, financial and government cross sections, again showed marked uncertainty. Considered collectively —as to the duration of the newly predicted more modest recovery movement.

Six months ago most of those who responded attributed the then forthcoming upward trend largely to government spending, but today they showed divergence of opinion on that subject.

Many thought increasing government debt is deterring private investment; others said they feared marked curtailment of government spending would prove sharply deflationary.

Analysis of Replies

Few anticipated a 1939 increase well above 1936-37 levels.

Other predictions determinted by majority analysis of replies:

The housing program is a leading factor indictaing recovery, and automobile production outlook is impressive.

A major European war is not likely now.

Re-armament orders probably will prove a modestly favorable factor in U. S. economy in 1939.

Decisive changes in the domestic political situation are not expected in the near future.

Farm prospects are somewhat improved.

Inventories have been reduced a bit further.

Highlights In Comment

The relationships between prices, costs and wages is disturbing.

Highlights of replies (in some instances paraphrased for brevity) follow:

Louis H. Bean department of agriculture, Wash., D. C.; recovery, industrial production and employment on a higher basis than 1934—1937 is likely only if: 1. Federal and heavy industry at least equals 1934-37. 2. Continued expansion of housing activity; 3. Increase in public utilities and railroads expenditures; 4. Increased foreign demand for wheat, cotton, re-armament supplies.

Virgil Jordan, president, National Industrial Conference Board, (an organization chiefly supported by big industries), New York:

"Assuming that the American economic system is not subjected to further damage by the domestic and foreign policies of government employes, business activity will probably increase moderately during this year and the average level will be higher than in 1938, but I do not expect recovery for the ten-year depression during the next two years."

Dale Yoder, University of Minnesota, likewise said he "forecast no significant business improvement in the next two years."

Alexander Bitterman, economist for the Communist party:

"Most disturbing immediate factor for business improvement is economy drive in congress. Public ownership of railroads and enlarged housing program would greatly improve short and long range prospects. Increased armaments as part of program for national and social security undoubtedly exercises favorable influence on business prospects."

Charles L. Stewart, University of Illinois: "Weather conditions favor 1939 farm production in middle west. Volume of crops not likely to equal 1938. Livestock and livestock products increasing."

Ragnar D. Naess, investment trust economist, "underlying trend of business upward although for next several months unlikely to exceed the high point of December."

Greater Credit Expansion

Erik T. H. Kjelstrom, Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., "Outlook for a business upswing this spring appears good with potentialties for great credit expansion provided closer cooperation and understanding can be achieved between business and government with emphasis placed upon healthy profits. Such a trend has already begun."

E. J. Berling, Vanderbilt University, Nashville: "Present indications are business will continue to improve during first half of 1939. Slight recession since first of year will continue for some six weeks longer. Underlying business conditions sound. National income for 1939 will be up 4 to 6 billion dollars over 1937. Unlikely foreign situation will upset recovery."

Lawrence Dennis, economist for a leading stock exchange firm: "The situation is in the laps of Messrs. Roosevelt, Hitler, Mussolini and Chamberlain, all of which does not make me bullish for 1939."

A. C. Whitaker Leland Stanford University, Palo Alto, Cal.: "I believe there will be continuing improvement in business during the coming spring and that 1939 will show a substantial recovery."

Fritz Lehmann, New School for Social Research, New York, "Rising armament expenditures and increase of building activity will offset effect of partial reduction in WPA outlays and will cause a moderate revival of business in late spring and early summer."

Roy Wenzlick, National Association of Real Estate Boards: "Total residential building for 1939 will exceed last year by more than 40 per cent. The effect on general business seems most optimistic element in the general outlook."

"G. W. Forster. University of North Carolina: "The present level of business activity should be maintained in the next twelve months through government spending. International outlook dark."

B. H. Beckhart, Columbia University: "Barring a European war. indices of business activity will probably continue at approximately present levels through spring, thereafter, lifted by increased construction activity and automobile construction, will rise steadly to the year's end."

Ernest Minor Paterson, University of Pennsylvania: "Prospects for a spring business recovery are good. A longer view is less encouraging. If a prolonged rise of prices is ahead business activity may well continue for many months but with an extremely serious reaction at some later date."

E. W. Kemmerer, Princeton University: "No hope of sound and enduring recovery unless and until people who own capital and industrial and business leaders, upon whose initiative we must chiefly depend for a strong forward movement, regain confidence in the future."

Club Observes Its Silver Anniversary

"Twenty-five years ago is a long long time,
To weave into meter and lore and rhyme,
So I'll try and convince in a verse or two
The thought and the scheme I would bring to you
The Nautilus club in that far off day
Was a problem child, in a great big way
But the babe grew up as babes will do
Nurtured in Faith, when the club was new
What patience, what care, in those twenty-five years,
Since the babe was born, in a world of tears.
Now that troublesome waif is a woman grown
With a sizeable family, all her own
But the Nautilus club retains her youth
And her early precepts of love and truth
And true to her standards her dauntless smile
We're proud to be one of the club worth while."

The Nautilus club of La Monte for twenty-five years has been meeting for study, book reviews, music and many other timely topics.

At a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Sam Smith Thursday the club observed its twenty-fifth anniversary, and seven charter members, with their president, occupied the places of honor. They presented interesting reminisences of the programs of the year. The first backward look was a "Style Show" of five years ago, by Mrs. Terry.

To place music in the school an operetta was prepared, "The Nautical Knot," told of by Mrs. Harris. At the age of two the club put on an "Art Exhibit" with copies of the old masters and living pictures, by Mrs. Walker. "First experiences at a state convention in St. Louis," Miss Harris. A six year old birthday party in the form of a district school, Mrs. Rhoads. A lecture course that was lost, Mrs. Parker. The first convention entertained, Miss Walker.

The members enjoyed hearing of the olden days with the fun and mistakes that accompany such gatherings, the entire program directed by Mrs. W. E. Walker.

The club voted to give the Boy Scouts $25 and also to sponsor a Girl Scout movement in the community.

Oyster Supper Given At The Johnson Home

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johnson and son, Marion Lee, entertained the following guests at their home on Sedalia route 3, Saturday evening at an oyster supper. Mr. and Mrs Joe Bucher, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rhoades and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Sanders and children, Roy and Esther.

The installment plan was first used for the purchase of automobiles in 1904. Previous to that time, it was necessary to have cash on hand to buy a car.

Wed 50 Years

Striped College PTA Program

The Striped College Parent-Teachers Association met at the school Friday night, February 3.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Harvey Fisher, and was opened with the singing of "America" which was led by Mrs. M. O. Stephens. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary. A poem was read by Mrs. Fisher. Plans were made for a five-cent supper to be held at the school some time soon. A study class will be held Tuesday afternoon, February 7, at the home of Mrs. S. G. Monsees.

After the business meeting the following program was given under the direction of Mrs. M. O. Stevens:

Piano duet, Cedar Brook Waltz —Mary Sue and Billy Monsees.

Recitation, The Flag—Laura Baldwin.

Vocal duet, Everyone Is In Slumberland But You and Me—Elaine and Loraine Hopkins.

Rhythm Band, Music Around

Talk, Fundamental Principles of Home Life—Mrs. Harvey Fisher.

the World—Upper grades.

Recitation, George Washington —Cecil Monsees.

Violin quartet, My First Piece—Junior Smith, Betty Hart, Loraine Hopkins, and Mary Sue Monsees.

Play, February's Birthday Cake —Lower grades.

Song, P. T. A. song—By the school.

Talk, Tribute and History of Founders Day—Mrs. Park Green.

At the close of this talk a very impressive candle lighting service was held to commemorate the forty-second anniversary of the National Congress. A cake donated by Mrs. Fisher was decorated with forty-two candles. Those taking part in the service were, Mrs. Fisher, Anna Mae Fisher, Doris Dabner, Lois Green, and Betty Hart. After this the cake was sold and the money will be used for a Founders Day gift.

Refreshments of cookies, coffee, and cocoa were served by the social committee.

Car Crashes Into Front of Building

About $15 damage was done to a Model A. Ford truck driven by Robert Burlingame and the door of the Suter Plumbing shop was damaged about 6:30 o'clock Friday evening when the truck ran into the front of the building.

Burlingame was driving east on Second street when he apparently lost control of the truck, the truck jumping the curb and running into the door at the front of the building.

E. A Brockman, 1522 Ingram is the owner of the truck. Officer E. Young investigated the accident.

Destroy $3,000 In City Bonds

Council Hears Ordinance On Street Lights

Elks Laud Fire Department

Members of D. A. R. Request Work On Memorial Drive

Members of the finance committee of the city council, Elmer Sumners, Dr. F. M. Fulkerson and S. J. Timborious, at the regular meeting of the city council Monday night, burned a $3000 judgment funding bond and a $500 Anna Rose Hammack judgment bond, which have been paid off.

Rev. McHenry Vanhoose, Negro, appeared for residents of North Broadway, presenting a petition to have a city water main extended down that street. He was referred to the Sedalia Water Company because such matters are not under the jurisdiction of the council.

An ordinance, providing for a traffic light at Broadway and Massachusetts avenue, as petitioned for by Smith-Cotton high school students, was read for the first time. It will be passed on at the next council meeting.

A letter was read from Miss Sarah Yarnell, property owner at 1501 South Limit avenue, protesting against what she termed "a junk yard" in that locality. New homes are being erected in the southwest part of town, she stated, it is one of the most attractive approaches to the city, and the place referred to mars the attractiveness of the district. Dr. F. M. Fulkerson and A. J. Knipp, aldermen, both agreed with the writer that the complaint was a just one, and the city engineer was requested to look into the matter. He said that the owner of the place had a license to transact business there, but whether it covered that particular business being carried on would have to be investigated, which will be done.

Dr. Fulkerson told of a request by a committee from the D. A. R. to fill some ditches on Memorial drive, at the south gate of Crown Hill cemetery, which place they have made one of their projects and beautified. Alderman Barman said that he had taken the matter up with the city engineer and learned that the WPA would soon be doing some work at the cemetery and the matter would be taken care of.

Alderman Frank Hugelman, chairman of the fire and water committee, read the following letter, received from J. W. Reid, secretary of the Sedalia Lodge of Elks:

Sedalia, Missouri.

February the Fourth, 1939.

Mr. Frank Hugelman, Chairman, Fire and Water Committee of the City Council,
Sedalia, Missouri.

Dear Mr. Hugelman:

We will greatly appreciate it if you will convey to the Honorable Mayor and the City Council of the City of Sedalia, the following message:

"The Board of Directors of the Elks Benevolent Home Association and Sedalia Lodge Number 125 B.P.O. Elks in joint meeting extended a unanimous vote of their appreciation to the Fire Department of this city and to the Fire Chief and members of the Department for the splendid service they rendered at the recent fire that partly destroyed the "Elks Home."

"The Citizens of Sedalia should be unusually proud of the Fire Department and each of its members as their zeal and courage have done much to protect the property of the citizens from loss by fire.

"The members of the Elks extend their thanks to each individual member of the Department for saving their Home from complete destruction."

Sincerely,
SEDALIA LODGE NO. 125,
(Seal) B.P.O.E.
J. W. REID, Secretary.

Funeral of J. R. Clegg

Funeral services for John Robert Clegg, 72, who died Wednesday afternoon at his home in Blairstown, were held Friday afternoon at the Methodist church there, with the Rev. C. F. Chastine, of Warrensburg, officiating.

Flower girls were the following granddaughters: Mabel Cleo Dilks and Mildred Pearl Clegg, Urich; Florence Christine Clegg and Pauline Belle Clegg, Harrisonville; Mary Lee McMahan, Warrensburg and Melicent Joyce Bradley, Sedalia.

Pallbearers were the following nephews: Ernest Pearce, Chanute, Kas., Steve Pearce, Chilhowee, Mo., Lloyd Henry, Warrensburg, Virgil Comer, Chilhowee and Marion and Walter Sanders Sedalia.

Burial was in the Blairstown cemetery.

Mr. Clegg, son of the late Stephen Clegg, a native of England and Josephene Waysman Clegg, of Saline county, was born in Howard county, January 14, 1867.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ida Bell Sanders Clegg and seven children: Miss Margaret Josephen Clegg, Delcarbon, Colo., Mrs. Elmer Coulter and Floyd Edgar Clegg, Blairstown, Mrs. Isaac Charles Dilks and Stephen Robert Clegg, Urich, Joseph Adam Clegg, Harrisonville and Mrs. Brooksie Boyd Bradley, Sedalia.

He also leave two sisters, Mrs. Jennie Pearce, Chilhowee and Mrs. John Henry, Warrensburg, 18 grandchildren and many other relatives.

Mr. Clegg had lived at his home, 2½ miles north of Blairstown for the last 26 years. He was a former resident of Arrow Rock, Boonville and Sedalia.

His death followed a long illness.

Percy T. Wimer

Percy T. Wimer, aged 59 years, passed away Sunday night at South Haven, Kas., according to a message to relatives at La Monte received Monday. Mr. Wimer spent his childhood and young manhood at LaMonte, but for twenty-five years or more, had been engaged in the banking business at South Haven, later being in the realty business.

Mr. Wimer was the son of Mrs. Mary V. Wimer and the late Asher F. Wimer, of LaMonte, spending his early life on a farm north of that place. While there he was a member of the M. E. Church, South. After going to Kansas he married Miss Elizabeth McNair, of LaMonte, who with three children survive him: Charles Wimer and Miss Ruth Wimer, of South Haven, and Miss Doris Wimer, the latter holding a position in a bank at Wichita, Kas. Besides his widow, mother and children, the following brothers and sisters survive: Hosea Wimer of Knob Noster, Karl S. Wimer of LaMonte, Kenneth Wimer of San Antonio, Texas, Mrs. Jay Dorsey of Houstonia, Mrs. Joseph Thompson of Knob Noster and Mrs. Perry Davis of Knob Noster.

Funeral services were held at South Haven Tuesday afternoon with burial at that place. Hosea Wimer of Knob Noster, and Miss Mary McNair of LaMonte left Monday for South Haven to attend the services. Miss McNair is a sister-in-law of the deceased.

F. G. Cordry

News of the passing at Urich, Mo., on Monday night of F. G. Cordry has been received in a message here to Aubrey C. Steele, 315 East Broadway, a cousin.

Mr. Cordry was well and favorably known in Sedalia, having numerous relatives here. He was familiarly known as "Pat" Cordry and had been engaged in the grocery business at Urich.

He is survived by a widow, son and daughter, Raymond and Mrs. Mae Douglas, also by two brothers and a sister.

Mrs. Lucy Ellen Farnham

Word has been received here of the passing at Ocean Springs, Miss., of Mrs. Lucy Ellen Farnham, widow of the late A. Farnham, and for many years a Sedalia resident in earlier days.

Mrs. Farnham was 91 years old and with a daughter, Miss Elizabeth Farnham, had lived at Ocean Springs for a considerable time. Her death on January 26 was following a stroke she suffered the Monday previous.

The body was sent from Ocean Beach to Memphis, Tenn., where a son, Lant Farnham, resides, for cremation and a message to Miss Rebie Schaefer, of this city, a friend of the family, states the ashes are being sent to her here.

Besides the daughter and son named another daughter, Mrs. George C. White, of Storrs, Conn., survives her.

Husband and Wife Die Few Hours Apart

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Informed her husband had been stricken seriously ill, Mrs. John W. Blackburn, 62, suffered a shock and was taken to the hospital with him.

Blackburn, also 62, died of heart disease shortly after entering. Mrs. Blackburn died of shock yesterday. Joint funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Producers of Live Stock Met

Annual Session Held Monday at Court House

Eighty-five Pettis county livestock producers were in attendance at the annual livestock and wool marketing meeting held in the assembly room of the court house yesterday. Frank B. Van Dyke, chairman of the county livestock committee, presided at the meeting.

Those in attendance were guests of the Producers' Livestock Commission Company and the Midwest Wool Marketing Association at the noon luncheon.

T. A. Ewing, extension animal husbandman of the Missouri College of Agriculture, led the discussion on livestock production practice. Mr. Ewing stated that pastures, which provide a succulent and high nutritious feed, are of prime importance in livestock production in Missouri. Because of the condition of our soils, which are greatly depleted of plant food, a low quality feed is being produced in many cases, stated Mr. Ewing. He brought out the need for building up the soil so that the feed produced would be of a better quality. He emphasized the need for better management in livestock production and that livestock producers should study all available facts at their command so that they would be in a better position to put a better management program in effect.

Earmarking Important

In his discussion on hogs, Mr. Ewing brought out the importance of earmarking litters so that only the most profitable gilts would be kept on the farm. He illustrated this point by citing an example of two sows—one which raised a litter of ten pigs to two hundred sixty pounds per hog in six months, while the second raised seven pigs which weighed two hundred nineteen pounds per hog in six months. These pigs had exactly the same feed and care, and the difference in gain was because of difference in breeding and fleshing qualities.

J. U. Morris, county extension agent, reported on the outlook for agricultural outlooks for 1939, stating that the outlook for Missouri farmers is definitely more favorable than it was a year ago. Farm income in 1939 is expected to be higher than in 1938.

In discussing each of the commodities individually, Mr. Morris stated that slightly higher beef cattle prices, lower average prices for dairy products, with still greater decreases in dairy feed costs, a better demand for sheep and lambs, increases in the average wool prices for the year, and a less favorable situation in the case of hogs than was experienced in 1938 could be expected.

H. D. Wright, manager of the Producers' Livestock Commission, discussed the marketing of livestock and recommended that producers use the terminal market rather than the direct marketing system.

W. W. Fuqua, director, Missouri Cooperative Service, for livestock and wool, discussed current legislation affecting livestock and wool producing.

Noted Figure In Industry Dies

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 4—(AP)—Sir Henri Deterding, who rose from poverty to become one of the richest and most powerful of the world's industrialists, died this afternoon at his villa here.

The Netherlands-born oil magnate and "Rockefeller of Europe" was 72 years old.

Sir Henri, possessor of a personal fortune estimated at between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000, retired in 1937 from the director-generalship of the monster Royal Dutch Petroleum company.

He was the guiding genius in the development of the far flung company which at the time of his retirement embraced a group of 200 companies with 40,000 employes.

Sir Henri was a frequent winter visitor to St. Moritz.

He was slightly indisposed today and a doctor was called to his villa.

"There is nothing much the matter with me," he laughingly remarked.

The doctor was leaving the villa grounds when Sir Henri suffered a heart seizure.

Before the doctor could reach Sir Henri's bedroom the world famed oil magnate was dead.

Sir Henri, thrice married, is survived by two sons and one daughter by his first marriage and two daughters by the second. His first wife died, a divorce dissolved his second marriage and he married a 38-year-old secretary in 1936.

Oklahoma Orders Pay To The Aged

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 4—(AP)—The Oklahoma Public Welfare commission ordered today March payments for old age pensions, aid to dependent children and needy blind drastically reduced unless the federal social security board resumes its grants within the next three days.

The commission sent to Washington a resolution estimating $3,000,000 in federal grants had been withheld by the federal board since last March because of overloaded rolls and a fight over adoption of a merit system and other requirements of the board for reinstatement.

Suffers Cuts When Thrown Off Horse

Walter Beal, of Beaman, received a cut lip and bruises and scratches about the face Friday afternoon when the horse which he was riding while rounding up some cattle stumbled and fell throwing him to the ground.

He was taken to the Bothwell hospital where he received medical attention.

Escaped Youths Captured Here

Three hours and thirty-five minutes were not enjoyed so much by two sixteen-year-old boys who escaped from the Missouri Training school at Boonville Saturday night. They were captured in the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad yards at 9:35 o'clock while riding on number 75, a freight train passing through Sedalia.

The boys, James King, 16, of St. Louis and Steve Zachula, 16, of Carthage, departed from the institution about 6 o'clock.

The boys were riding between the cars on the bumpers and King stepped on a coupling and narrowly escaped losing his foot when it was caught. He suffered only a slight skinned place on the foot.

Both were taken to police headquarters by the police officers where they were questioned and later placed in the county jail to be held until officials from the training school arrive this morning.

Extols Liberal Pensions Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—The House Ways and Means committee heard the General Welfare Federation's plan for $30 to $60 pensions for the aged extolled today as a means of eliminating all unemployment.

Arthur L. Johnson, executive secretary of the federation and formerly an official of the rival Townsend old age pension organization, told the committee, too, it would not cost the government a cent.

The plan proposes that pensions be financed by a two per cent gross income tax. Johnson said this would permit giving everyone over 60 years of age a pension, estimating at the same time the annual cost would range from $2,880,000,000 to $7,200,000,000, depending on the number of beneficiaries and the size of the pensions.

Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn.) commented the figuring was "haywire," but that by Johnson's own figures the federal tax burden would be doubled.

"On the contrary," said Johnson, "It won't cost the federal government a cent. This system carries its own freight."

"But it comes out of the pockets of the people," insisted Cooper.

New Rail For Missouri Pacific

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 7.—Orders for 31,110 tons of new rail, involving an expenditure of approximately $1,500,000, have been placed by the Missouri Pacific Lines, it was announced here today by L. W. Baldwin, chief executive officer.

The orders include 710 tons of 131-pound rail, 23,870 tons (approximately 135.8 miles) of 112-pound rail, and 6,530 tons (approximately 46.14 miles) of 90-pound rail. All of the 131-pound rail and 112-pound rail, and 4,280 tons of the 90-pound rail will be used on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. The Gulf Coast Lines, Missouri Pacific subsidiary in Texas and Louisiana, will receive 2,250 tons of 90-pound rail.

Contracts for the new rail were placed with the Inland Steel Company, Chicago, Ill.; Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., Birmingham, Ala.; Carnegie Steel Company, Chicago, and the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co., Pueblo, Colo.

Not Reopen Case On Risk Fees

JEFFERSON, CITY, Feb. 7—(AP)—The state supreme court today declined to reopen its recent decision outlawing $412,500 in fees paid three Kansas City lawyers for their part in the old 10 per cent fire insurance rate litigation.

The court held several months ago that Circuit Judge Nike G. Sevier was without jurisdiction in the Cole county court when he awarded legal fees out of impounded insurance premiums to the three lawyers, John T. Barker, Floyd E. Jacobs and Glenn C. Weatherby. The supreme judges over-ruled a motion for rehearing of the case today without comment.

Asks $2,500 Damages Over Auto Accident

A damage suit was filed in the Circuit Clerk's office Monday afternoon by W. C. Kuhlman against the Sedalia Water Company asking $2,500 for injuries suffered by the plaintiff when an automobile he was driving was in a collision with an automobile belonging to the defendant December 18, 1938.

President Hits At Senators

Assails Glass And Byrd Over Roberts Issue

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(AP)—In vigorous language, President Roosevelt accused the Senate Tuesday of disregarding constitutional procedure in rejecting the nomination of Floyd H. Roberts as judge for the western district of Virginia.

Declaring no question as to Roberts' fitness was raised, he said the constitution was intended to give the Senate the right to reject or confirm appointments "solely on the grounds of the fitness of the nominee."

Virginia's two Democratic Senators, Glass and Byrd, who persuaded the Senate to reject the nomination on the ground it was personally objectionable to them, were accused by the President of trying to dictate to him.

"The senators from Virginia," he said in a letter to Roberts, "have in effect said to the President—'We have nominated to you two candidates acceptable to us; you are hereby directed to nominate one of our candidates; and if you do not we will reject the nomination of anybody else selected by you, however fit he may be."

Had named Candidates

(Glass and Byrd had suggested men for the judgeship, but their recommendations were passed over. Glass angrily told the Senate judiciary committee had information the President's action was intended as a rebuke to him and Byrd for voting against administration legislation.)

The president bluntly accused Glass of making untrue statements. One of these, Mr. Roosevelt said, was that Homer Cummings, former attorney general and adviser on judiciary appointments, "never had the slightest idea of giving consideration to the recommendations of the two Virginia senators because the governor of Virginia (James H. Price) had been promised the right of veto on nominations that they made.'

Refuses Comment

Senator Glass, after reading the president's letter last night said: "It's hardly worth discussing. There's nothing to it, but I may have something to say about it in the Senate later."

The Virginian said "You can search the letter in vain for any denial" that the President gave governor Price the veto power.

Byrd merely said:

"He (the President) has had his say. We may have ours later."

Drafts Sharp Reply

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(AP)—Senator Glass (D-Va.), drafted a sharp reply today to a presidential letter criticizing Senate rejection of Floyd H. Roberts for a federal judgeship in Virginia.

Friends said Glass was incensed over the letter, which Mr. Roosevelt wrote Roberts yesterday. It termed statements of Glass untruthful and declared the constitution does not give veto power to one or two senators.

Action on objections by the two Virginia senators, the Senate voted 72 to 9 Monday to reject Roberts' nomination. Glass and Byrd, contending their recommendations for the appointment had been ignored, had argued Roberts nomination was "personally offensive" to them.

Behind the furore over the judgeship, friends of the two senators professed to see a showdown fight between them and the President in the 1940 Virginia senatorial race.

Charge Illegal Sales of Liquor

Three of 133 liquor dealers in the state of Missouri, against whom felony charges were filed by the attorney general's office in Jefferson City, are Sedalians. This is said to be the first move in a state-wide drive against liquor law violators.

The names of three defendants, with the informations, were received this morning by Prosecuting Attorney Frank W. Hayes, who filed charges in the justice court of J. C. Connor.

They are:

Forrest "Jaybird" Miller, charged with making a sale of whisky on October 23, 1938, at Breezy Point, on south highway 65, to L. W. Alexander and S. L. West, liquor inspectors. The information charges that Miller had a permit to sell only 3.2 beer.

Carl Abbott, Negro, charged with selling whisky on January 30, 1938, at 121 East Main street, to Harry Pence, liquor inspector. The information alleges that Abbott had a permit to sell only 5 per cent beer.

Ida May Abbott, wife of Carl Abbott, charged with selling a drink of liquor December 4, 1937, to Dallas Grose, liquor inspector, when she had a permit to sell only 3.2 beer.

Prompt Action For Aged Aid

Assembly To Meet Federal Requirements

Rep. E. W. Couey of the Missouri general assembly was home Saturday for the weekend and was besieged with questions as to when checks for the aged would be forthcoming under provisions of the Social Security act.

This he was unable to answer definitely, but he declared everything was being done to meet with corrective legislation necessary to secure federal aid, without which federal funds would not be available.

Mr. Couey stated that a meeting of the Senate committee would be held Monday night to prepare for complying with the requirements of the federal government and that he was confident both the Senate and House would act as promptly as possible to meet the issue.

It is the purpose to have the amendments to previous legislation on social security be explicit and so formulated, Mr. Couey says, that there will be no hitch in the securing of federal funds when such is enacted, and which, he assures, will be shortly. The legislation will contain an emergency clause making it effective as soon as signed by Governor Lloyd Stark. It will likely be at least a week before final action is taken.

Some have propounded the query as to whether payment, when made, will be for two months and this Mr. Couey was unable to answer as he has no direct information from the federal social security authorities as to that contingency. He was confident, however, an endeavor would be made for such.

Has Attack After Told of Blaze

Joy R. Cotterman, well-known Sedalian, suffered a heart attack Saturday afternoon while in the Cole Brothers store on South Ohio avenue. His condition, although serious, is showing much improvement at the Bothwell hospital where he was taken in the McLaughlin ambulance.

Mr. Cotterman had stopped in the store and was talking to Miss Mabel Bassett, when Miss Bassett remarked to him about his home being on fire. Mr. Cotterman toppled over a second later.

The Cotterman home, 620 West Fourth street, had caught fire and Mrs. Cotterman who is employed at the Cole store had been called home, and upon learning of her husband's condition returned immediately to the store and accompanied him to the hospital.

About $150 damage resulted to the dwelling and contents, from fire and smoke. The fire started beneath the flooring of the first floor in the basement near the furnace. The house was filled with smoke which did the greater part of the damage.

The fire was at 1:06 o'clock in the afternoon.

THE ENTIRE COST OF THE C.C.C.

COULD BE PAID FOR BY THE TAXES OF THE BREWING INDUSTRY!

The Treasury Department shows expenditures of 326 million dollars for the Civilian Conservation Corps for the fiscal year of 1938. The brewing industry pays over a million dollars a day in taxes.

What Beer contributes to the re-building of America would fill a great volume

Over 400 million dollars in taxes every year. Over 1,000,000 jobs. A market for 3,000,000 farm acres of produce.

The brewing industry would like to preserve for itself and the people the many economic benefits it has created in the past five years. Brewers everywhere realize that this is a question bound up with the proper distribution of their mild and wholesome beverage through retail outlets whose character will be a credit to the community. Obviously, the brewers can enforce no laws. But they can—and will—cooperate with the local law-enforcement authorities. They will cooperate with every group—friend or critic—to the end that retail beer outlets give no offense to anyone.

Millionaire Cattle King

Major Andrew Drumm, millionaire cattle king of the Southwest, roamed his thousands of cattle over the plains of Kansas and Oklahoma before the fencing and plowing up of the cattle country was begun by homesteaders in the late 1880's. Only then did he withdraw from the range to engage in the commission business and the lending of money to cattle men.

Major Drumm was born in Zanesville, Ohio, on February 6, 1828, one hundred and eleven years ago this week. While still a young man he crossed the Isthmus of Panama with a company of forty-miners and took passage to California on the "Tennessee," said to have been the first steam passenger boat to round the Horn.

He soon returned from California, but in a few years crossed the western plains and mountains to establish a ranch on government lands in Tulare Valley. Here he specialized in raising hogs, becoming noted for handling more hogs than any other man in California at that time. Usually the hogs were fattened on acorns, but occasionally large droves of as many as 2,500 were driven to the farming district near Sacramento and fattened on barley. Drumm finally sold his ranch and moved to San Francisco, where he engaged in the business of slaughtering hogs.

Major Drumm left California about 1870, and went to southern Texas. Here he purchased a herd of cattle and trailed them north, about 1,200 miles, to Sumner County, Kansas, where, on Bluff creek west of Caldwell, he laid the foundation for his fortune. From this small herd of a few hundred cattle his business expanded until he owned as many as 40,000 cattle at one time and branded as many as 7,500 calves during a season. Major Drumm said to have been the first man to turn his cattle lose in the Cherokee Strip, operated ranches in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, California, Missouri, New Mexico, and Arizona. For many years he trailed large herds for hundreds of miles to Abilene and Coffeyville, Kansas. As the railroads were extended he shipped from Wichita, Caldwell, Hunnewell Harper and Kiowa.

Major Drumm came to Kansas City in 1874, but it was not until the 1880's that he opened a livestock commission business and began lending money to cattle men. The Drumm Commission Company did business at the Kansas City stock yards, the union stock yards in Chicago, and the national stock yards in East St. Louis. Drumm was interested in several banks, including the American National Bank of Kansas City and the Bank of Kiowa, Kansas. He was president of the latter from 1884-1919.

Drumm accumulated a fortune of $2,000,000 and was, for a number of years before his death, the largest individual personal tax payer in Kansas City. For forty years he worked to develop the live stock industry in the territory tributary to Missouri's second largest city. Personally and through the Drumm Commission Company he annually lent the cattle men of the southwest from eight to twelve million dollars.

Always interested in boys, Drumm shortly before his death purchased a 370 acre farm two and one-half miles southeast of Independence, Missouri, and founded the "Andrew Drumm Institute."

Although he made numerous contributions to various charitable and civic undertakings he made this home his monumental philanthropic work, bequeathing to it $1,800,000. He died at San Antonio, Texas, on April 14, 1919.

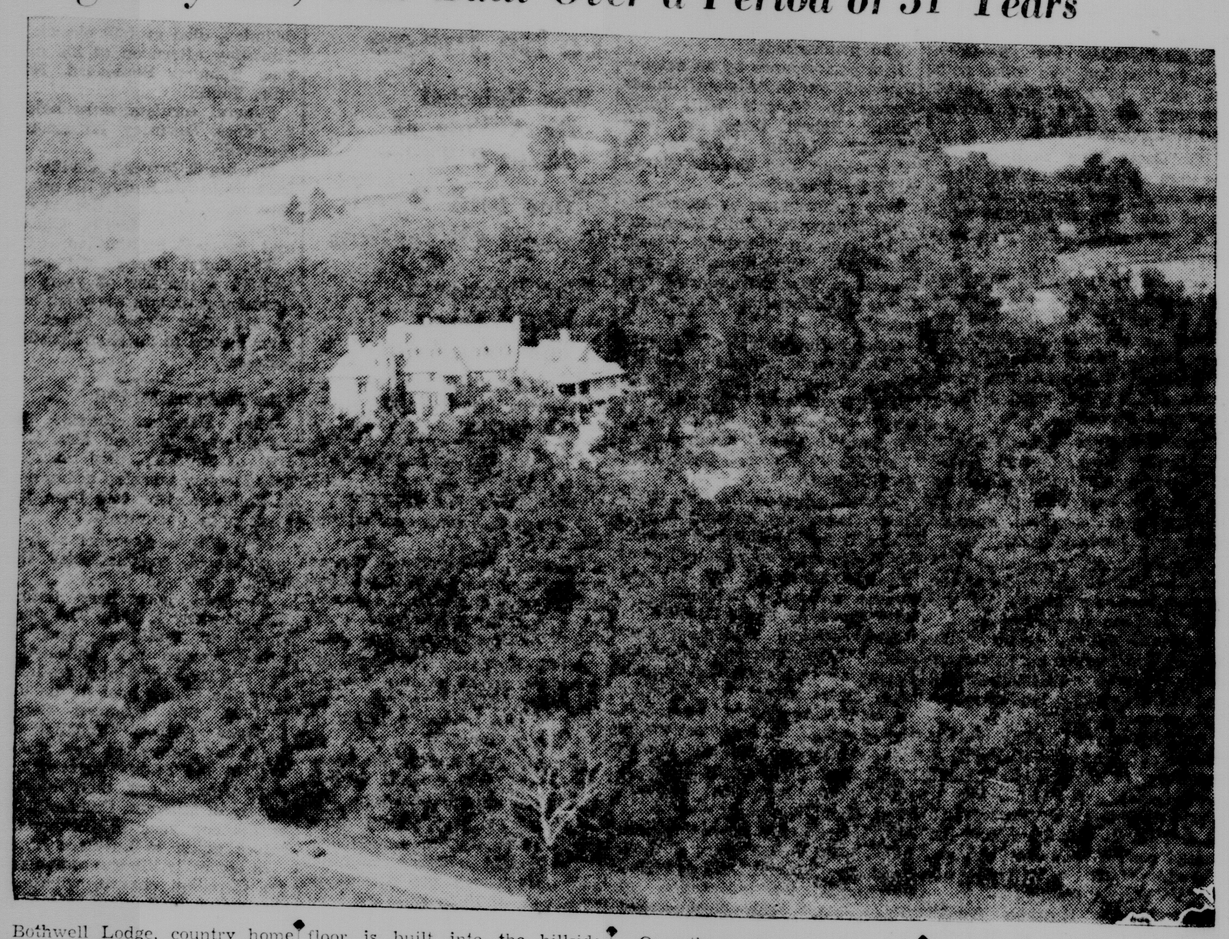
Bothwell Lodge, Atop a Bluff High Above North Highway 65, Was Built Over a Period of 31 Years



Bothwell Lodge, country home of the late John Homer Bothwell, from its lofty setting on the hill seven miles north of Sedalia on highway 65, dominates the rolling Missouri landscape like a medieval castle. The accompanying photograph is an aerial view taken by John Joe McGrath from Tommy Weber's airplane.

It was in December, 1896, that Mr. Bothwell, a leading Sedalia attorney and once a Republican nominee for governor, made arrangements for the purchase of the 80-odd acres containing the highest bluff in Pettis county, to preserve the forests there. The trees are principally oak, maple, elm, walnut and ash. There is also an abundance of fragrant shumac.

Construction of the original lodge, now the south section (right in photo) was commenced early in the year 1897. The stone used in the two-story house was quarried from the hill. The first floor is built into the hillside, and below that is a dungeon-like cellar in one wall of which are two small caves.

During the construction of the tower wing, erected in the years 1913-14-15, a large cave was discovered two stories below the main level. It was found to extend about 150 feet back into the bluff. Mr. Bothwell gave orders to have the structure (extreme left in photo) built over the cave.

In the basement above the cave there is a workshop where the late attorney spent recreational hours working with woods. A heavy door, with studs of iron, that opens onto the hill was made by him. The cave, although it is seldom visited now, can be reached by a trap door of stone in the workshop.

Barring the inner passageway a heavy door with a grated opening is fastened by a great lock and hasp that once belonged to an ancient castle in Nuremberg.

Over the workshop is a library. The walls of this room are lined with bookcases containing hundreds of volumes of Mr. Bothwell's prized books. The tower, complete to the battlements that one reaches through a trap door, is two stories above the library.

The final and middle section of the picturesque lodge was completed in 1928—a year before Mr. Bothwell's death. In front of the edifice, overlooking the highway, is a flag-stoned court extending to the edge of the bluff. At the bluff's edge is a stone wall.

There are now 36 rooms, none alike in size, in addition to five baths and two half-baths in the three-sectioned stone structure.

The entire building is a mystery of levels, intricate passageways, numerous stairways, odd little corners, tiny rooms and masterful halls, reminiscent of another and more romantic age.

In 1927 and 1928 Mr. Bothwell had another home built on the hill. It was named the Cliff House, and served as a summer home for the late Conn Bothwell, a cousin, and Mrs. Bothwell. Back farther is a caretaker's home. Close to the lodge is a large garage.

For the last ten years, Miss Lucy Bothwell, Mr. Bothwell's niece, has made her home at the lodge. She is now the mistress of the castle, the keeper of its many keys. Her residence there constitutes the original lodge.

At Mr. Bothwell's death the lodge proper was left in trust to a club composed of a group of his close friends. A number spend their summers there, and through the year the lodge is the scene of happy social gatherings.

In its setting of virgin timber, and with its story-book history of subterranean caverns and the discovery of an Indian burial grounds atop the hill, Bothwell Lodge is a romantic citadel that gives a unique identification to Sedalia.

Gets The First Jobless Check Here

Henry Holtzclaw, a jobless worker living at 1009 West Tenth street, this week was issued the first unemployment compensation check for benefit claims filed at the Sedalia Employment Office, according to an announcement by Andrew J. Murphy, Sr., chairman of the Unemployment Compensation Commission of Missouri.

Mr. Holtzclaw's check was for $12.34 and represented his first benefits under the Missouri Unemployment Compensation Law which became effective January 2. If he continues to be unemployed his previous earnings in "covered employment" entitles him to $119.11 during his benefit year. Meanwhile, the employment office, where he has also registered for work, is striving to match his qualifications with the duties of any available work.

To be eligible for benefits under the law, a worker must have earned wages from an employer who has paid into the Unemployment Trust Fund a contribution based upon his payroll in an amount sufficient to comply with the law; register for work and file a claim for benefits at a Missouri State Employment Service office; be able and available for work, and serve a three weeks' waiting period.

SHERIFF'S SALE IN PARTITION

By virtue and authority of an order of sale in partition, issued from the office of the clerk of the circuit court of Pettis County, Missouri, dated the 2nd day of December, 1938, and to me directed in favor of Third National Bank, of Sedalia, Missouri, as Trustee of the Daniel I. Wilcox Estate, B. J. Minnier, Flora Elliott, Wynona Elliott, Laura Whiteman, Lillian E. Jared, Stella M. Lower, and Mary Millicent Duly as plaintiffs, and against James J. Donnelly defendant, and it appearing to the court that the plaintiffs are entitled to the relief prayed for in their petition, ordered that the property described in plaintiff's petition be sold by the sheriff of Pettis County, Missouri, as provided by law in such cases. Now, therefore, in order to comply with the terms of said order of sale, I, the undersigned sheriff of Pettis County, Missouri, shall proceed to sell said real estate, so ordered sold, and situated in Pettis County, Missouri, to-wit:

The Southeast Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section number Twenty-five (25), and the Northeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter, and the North Half of the Southeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of Section number Thirty-six (36), all in Township number Forty-seven (47) North, of Range number Twenty-one (21) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, except the following described land: Land conveyed to D. C. and J. M. Newland by Deed recorded in Book 85 at Page 533, to T. S. Payne by Deed recorded in Book 109 at Page 328, to Michael McNutt by Deeds recorded in Book 110 at page 453 and Book 127 at page 599, and to William K. Green by Deed recorded in Book 116 at page 244 of the Recorder's Office of Pettis County, Missouri;

Also, one acre of ground described in farm lease recorded in Book "D" Page 449 of the Recorder's Office of Pettis County, Missouri described as follows: The tract of One (1) Acre located along the public highway just north of Newland Store on the J. W. Hammond Farm and more particularly described as being situated in the Southeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of Section number Thirty-six (36), Township number Forty-seven (47), Range number Twenty-one (21);

n Pettis County, Missouri, and I will on Saturday, the 11th day of February, 1939, between the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the west front door of the court house, in the city of Sedalia, Pettis County, Missouri, and while the circuit court is in session, sell the above described real estate at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in hand in order to comply with the said order of sale.

Dated this 20th day of January 1939.

M. L. MARLIN,
Sheriff of Pettis County, Missouri.
Montgomery and Salveter, attorneys.

SHERIFF'S SALE

Under Deed of Trust

Because of default in the payment of taxes and indebtedness secured by deed of trust executed by Leo P. Staus and Willa F. Staus, his wife dated April 1, 1924 and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of Pettis County, Missouri, in Book 301, Page 392, conveying unto Jesse R. Clark, Jr., and The St. Louis Union Trust Company as Trustees,

The Southeast Quarter (SE¼) except ten acres described as follows: Beginning at the Southwest corner of the Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section Twenty-two (22), thence north forty (40) rods, thence east twenty (20) rods, thence southeast in a straight line to a point sixty (60) rods east of beginning, thence west to place of beginning, all lying in Township Forty-four (44), Range Twenty-one (21), containing 150 acres

In Pettis County, Missouri, the legal holder of the written obligations and claims secured by said deed of trust has declared the whole thereof due and payable in accordance with the terms of said deed of trust, and has, by written instrument duly filed for record, requested me, the undersigned, to foreclose said deed of trust; Therefore, I will in response to said request, made in accordance with the terms and provisions of said deed of trust and under the authority therein provided, sell said real estate at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, on Saturday the 25th day of February 1939, between the hours of 9:00 o'clock A. M. and 5:00 o'clock P. M., at the West Front door of the Court House in Sedalia, Pettis County, Missouri to satisfy said indebtedness and the cost of executing this trust, or so much thereof as the proceeds of such sale may be sufficient to pay.

W. L. MARLIN,
Sheriff of Pettis County, Missouri.
First published January 20, 1939.

TRUSTEE'S SALE

On the 16th day of February, 1933, Mary Guthrie, single, by her deed of trust recorded in trust deed record 356 on page 117 in the Recorder's Office of Pettis County, Mo., conveyed to the undersigned, H. T. Williams, as Trustee, The North West Quarter of Section Number Twenty-one (21), in Township Number Forty-six (46) North, of Range Number Twenty-three (23) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, and containing One Hundred Sixty (160) acres, in Pettis County, Mo., to secure the payment of her four promissory notes and interest thereon in said deed described.

The interest on said notes is past due and unpaid. The taxes are due and unpaid, on said property. The said Mary E. Guthrie has been dead for more than nine months.

I will therefore in accordance with the provisions of said Deed of Trust and at the request of the legal holder of said notes, sell said property at the West front door of the Court House in the City of Sedalia, Pettis County, to the highest bidder for cash on Saturday, the 25th day of February, 1939, between the hours of nine A. M. and five P. M. of said day to satisfy said Deed of Trust.

Approve Huge Sum To Run U. S. Offices

Appropriation Measure Is Sent To House

Ambie Before A Committee

Questioned As To Views On Communism

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.— The house received from its appropriations committee today a recommendation that it supply $1,898,512,769 to run the government's independent offices through the next fiscal year.

Although the total was $298,000,000 above that for the current year, it was $1,580,670 below the budget bureau's estimate.

Representative Rayburn of Texas, the house Democratic leader, said the house probably would pass the bill tomorrow night and on Thursday would start debate on a measure embodying most of the suggestions in President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 national defense program.

President Roosevelt's nominee for the interstate commerce commission, Thomas A. Amlie of Wisconsin, told a senate subcommittee considering his appointment that he believed in public ownership of railroads.

Amlie, former Progressive representative from Wisconsin, disavowed, however, all sympathy with the Communist party and dismissed as "ridiculous" the Wisconsin legislature's charge that he was a Communist.

The house ways and means committee, continuing its hearing of proposed substitutes for the social security system, called the Rev. Thomas E. Boorde, president of the General Welfare Federation.

For Relief Slash

Rep. Woodrum (D-Va) said before congress his approval that that future relief appropriations be halved, and that relief administration be turned over to the state as far as possible.

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City appealed to the supreme court from a decision that he and his police unconstitutionality had denied the CIO and American Civil Liberties Union the right of free assemblage.

The CIO, in its official publication, cried out against amendments the American Federation of Labor has proposed for the Wagner labor relations act.

Chairman Sumners (D-Tex) postponed at least until Wednesday a meeting of the house judiciary committee which had been called for tomorrow to hear Secretary Perkins discuss a resolution by Rep. Thomas (R-NJ) calling for her impeachment.

The house approved and sent to the White House a resolution providing an additional $25,000 for expenses of a joint senate-house committee investigating the Tennessee Valley Authority. The measure gives the committee until April 1 to make a report to congress.

Chairman William O. Douglas of the securities commission told the national economic (monopoly) committee that the "tremendous and spectacular" growth of insurance companies since 1906 alone was enough to justify an inquiry into their economic influence.

The Amlie appointment to the ICC was one of a pair which had aroused controversies.

Committeemen were interested in learning whether Amlie's economic views are as "radical" as some of his critics have alleged. Senators were chary of predicting whether he would be confirmed.

A member of the Progressive party, the 41-year-old Amlie gave up his house seat last year when he unsuccessfully sought nomination to the senate. After his appointment to the ICC, the Wisconsin legislature adopted a resolution of protest, declaring he was a Communist. The Communist party in Wisconsin denied the assertion.

Allotment On Corn Acreage

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 6—(AP)—Allotments of soil depleting crop acreage under the 1939 AAA program have been sent to farmers in 65 Missouri counties, C. W. Sheppard, chairman of the state agricultural conservation committee, announced today.

The allotments cover 3,276,756 acres of 155,654 farms. Corn allotments total 1,205,435 acres in 26 counties. Cotton allotments cover 390,000 acres in 12 counties.

The corn allotments include: Audrian, 81,659; Boone, 48,265; Buchanan, 40,685; Callaway, 42,378; Cape Girardeau, 36,805; Chariton, 70,125; Cooper, 43,501; Dunklin, 54,173; Grundy, 36,040; Howard, 34,130; Livingston, 45,452; Macon, 61,910; Marion, 33,758; Mississippi, 51,900; Monroe, 55,417; New Madrid, 73,788; Nodaway, 131,325; Pemiscot, 45,014; Perry, 20,487; Pettis, 61,183; Pike, 51,174; Ralls, 41,961; Randolph, 34,617; Saline, 93,557; Scott, 45,371; Shelby, 44,599; Stoddard, 71,106; Vernon, 76,969.

Wed 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thomas, 1113 East Fifth street, celebrated their golden wedding January 23. James Robert Thomas was married to Elizabeth Prudence Dinwiddie, January 23, 1889, at the home of the bride's father, Rev. Franklin Dinwiddie, of Florence, Mo. They were married by the Rev. B. F. Stone, at noon. Those present besides the two ministers mentioned were the bride's step-mother, Mrs. Mary Dinwiddie and sister, Miss Luthera C. Dinwiddie, and the bridegroom's father, mother and brother.

The bride wore a tan dress trimmed in brown velvet and the bridegroom wore a dark wine suit. A wedding dinner was served them at the home.

Fifty years have passed and another wedding dinner was set for this beloved couple by four of their children, Mrs. Roy Miller, Hughesville, Mrs. F. E. Vaughn, LaMonte, Mo., Miss Elsie Thomas, Green Ridge, Mrs. Ralph W. Hall, 821 South Missouri avenue, Sedalia. Other members of this family who were unable to attend were, Mrs. E. F. Hood, Norborne, Mo., Robert Thomas, Buckner, Woodson Thomas, Independence.

Besides these seven children, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have fifteen grand children and two great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have resided in Pettis county on a farm most of their married life.

Aid Offered By McKittrick

Full Vigor To Grand Jury at Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 6—(AP)—The grand jury investigating Governor Stark's charges of a "breakdown of law enforcement" in Kansas City, took up its task with full vigor today, reinforced by the presence of Attorney General Roy McKittrick, who offered his unstinted aid.

McKittrick's entry into the investigation ended a week-long tiff between the attorney general and Judge Allen C. Southern who instituted the anti-gambling crusade. McKittrick had taken exception to the judge's request for special prosecutors, declaring he would not delegate his powers to any outsiders.

The attorney general stated he would not permit his office to be used in a "political way" in the governor's attack on the T. J. Pendergast bailiwick.

Before entering the courtroom today, McKittrick said he bore no "ill feeling" toward Judge Southern but indicated he still was at odds with Governor Stark.

"I think it was very unfair for the governor to direct me by letter to investigate crime here and then have investigators come here without my knowledge—investigators who did not consult me at all," he said.

McKittrick also charged that it was Stark who backed the move for a special prosecutor.

With Jury 40 Minutes

The attorney general remained with the jury 40 minutes. He said he offered his services and those of his office force but had no intimation whether they would be accepted.

McKittrick gained entry to the jury room on an order from Judge Southern. He had not conferred with the judge this morning.

Michael W. O'Hern, first assistant county prosecutor, followed McKittrick into the jury room. He said he offered his services upon instructions from W. W. Graves, his superior.

Graves last week asked the supreme court to declare the grand jury and its investigation illegal after Judge Southern advised the jury to proceed without the prosecutor's aid.

Governor Stark, in a statement at Jefferson City, had urged that the jury determine, in the course of its investigation, Graves' fitness for holding office.

First witness called today by the jurors was Maurice Sucrow, former captain of police and a recent addition to the state payroll. He has been identified generally as a special crime investigator.

It was Sucrow who signed the warrant when a bingo establishment was raided January 16, in Judge Southern's first move against Kansas City gambling.

Farmer Found Hanging From Rope in Loft

CLINTON, Mo., Feb. 6.—Dr. S. B. Hughes, Henry County coroner, today pronounced as suicide the death of R. W. Stream, prominent farmer, 12 miles southwest of here, who was found hanging from a rope in his barn loft Sunday. Relatives said he had been worrying over the administration of his mother's estate.

Youth of Eighteen Saves Little Brother's Life

HARDY, Ark., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Ray Rader, 18, saved the life of his ten-year old brother Julian when their home burned last midnight and today was in danger of losing his own. Removed to a hospital for treatment of burns which he suffered in carrying Julian from the house, his condition was described as critical. The two boys were alone when the fire started.

Docket It Set For Court Term

Bond Case Is Set For Trial February 27

The suit on bond, filed by the City of Sedalia, against Tom E. Dugan, former city collector, has been set for trial in the circuit court on February 27. At this time the matter of the validity of the bond will be taken up before a jury. If the jury decides the bond is valid, the court will then pass on the question of whether or not a referee shall be appointed to hear the case proper, which will involve many books, records and accounts.

Attorneys for W. L. Marlin, sheriff, and his bonding company, who are being sued for damages by G. C. Swearingin, alleging abuse on the part of the sheriff, filed notice Monday morning that they will ask for a change of venue. They allege the inhabitants of the county are biased and prejudiced against the defendants.

Other Cases Set

Among other cases set for trial, or disposed of at the opening of the February term of civil court Monday morning, are:

Joe Williams versus Q. A. Morgan, February 13.

Mattie Ezell versus Bagby Poultry Farm, et al, contract, February 23.

Two suits filed by William M. Huston versus The Equitable Life Assurance Society, a corporation, insurance, set over until May.

Elizabeth Brooks et al, versus City of Sedalia et al, February 14.

F. L. Perry versus Allen Karf, et al, damage, March 1.

Charles Siard versus E. M. Dirck et al, note, dropped from docket.

Daisy Farris versus J. A. Strole, gar. Lovell Farris, garnishment, dropped from docket.

Nellie G. Strong versus Bankers Guaranty Life Co., insurance, March 2.

The injunction suit filed by the City of Sedalia against the owners of the building on the southwest corner of Main street and Lamine avenue, February 10.

Nine Fatalities In Traffic Mishaps

By The Associated Press

Deaths of four young people whose automobile plunged through a bridge guard rail yesterday near Sikeston headed a list of at least nine fatalities blamed on traffic accidents in Missouri over the week end.

The four were Henry Gromer, 18; Jim Alverson, 24; Arnold Alverson, 17, his brother, all of Essex, and Wanda Good, 16, of Parma.

Their bodies were found by highway department employes called to fix the broken bridge rail. A wheel of the nearly-submerged car led to the discovery. Coroner L. A. Richards said all drowned.

An explosion in a burning trailer-truck near Shelbina Saturday killed Theodore W. Imgarten, 32, New Brunswick farmer, and injured four other persons.

All other victims were pedestrians. In St. Louis, George Miller, 68, was struck and killed Sunday, and Anton Louis Frank, 51, died Saturday of injuries received when hit by a car. In Kansas City, Mrs. Nellie Morgan, 28-year-old Negro, was killed by a hit-run driver.

Lawrence Fible, 17-year-old Columbia high school senior, died in Hannibal Saturday of injuries suffered nearly a month ago in an automobile accident.

Tied For Second In School Plays

Hughesville tied with Cole Camp for second place in the high school plays held at Green Ridge Thursday night.

They gave "Mushrooms Coming Up," with the following cast: Mrs. Canfield— Bernice Stevenson; Susan Todd—Dolores Jean Strader; Sylvia— Ruth Barlish; Mrs. Jane Rudd—Tessa Purnell; Mrs. Rena Carter—Lillian Rages; Nurse, Dora Siron.

Bernice Stevenson and Dolores Jean Strader were chosen on the all-star cast.

Foreign Actors Lead 1938 Selection of Stars

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Twelve thousand film folks, with the world as a kibitzer, began choosing today the best picture and best actors of 1938.

It's "Oscar Time" in Hollywood the time when stand-ins and stars, "yes men" and producers, have equal votes in selecting the winners of gold-plated academy statuettes.

The list of nominees, compiled by the screen guilds, was released last night. Of the ten pictures named as possibly the best last year, two—"The Citadel" and "Pygmalion"—were British products, and a third, "Grand Illusion," was French.

Two Britishers—Robert Donat and Leslie Howard—and Gallic Charles Boyer shared nominations as the five best male players of 1938 with home-grown Spencer Tracy and James Cagney.

A british discovery Wendy Hiller broke into the ranks of the five women nominated for the best feminine performance.

And the literary pride of the British Isles, bewhiskered George Bernard Shaw, was listed as doing one of the best five jobs of screen writing during the year.

Ballots for final voting will be mailed out by the motion picture Academy of Arts and Sciences next Friday.

The statuettes, or "Oscars," will be presented to the winners at the annual awards banquet the night of February 23.

Biggest Money Maker

"Alexander's Ragtime Band," biggest money-maker of 1938, got in the list of ten best pictures, but Walt Disney's feature cartoon, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," a close rival for the box-office championship, was not voted upon.

The nominations:

Best performance by an actor—Charles Boyer in "Algiers," James Cagney in "Angels With Dirty Faces," Robert Donat in "The Citadel," Leslie Howard in "Pygmalion," and Spencer Tracy in "Boys Town."

Best performance by an actress—Fay Bainter in "White Banners." Bette Davis in "Jezebel," Wendy Hiller in "Pygmalion," Norma Shearer in "Marie Antionette, and Margaret Sullivan in "Three Comrades."

Outstanding picture of the year—"Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Boys Town," "The Citadel," "Four Daughters," "Grand Illusion," "Jezebel," "Pygmalion," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Test Pilot," and "You Can't Take It With You."

Best direction — "Angels With Dirty Faces," by Michael Curtiz; "Boys Town" by Norman Taurog; "The Citadel," by King Victor; "Four Daughters," by Michael Curtiz; and "You Can't Take It With You.," by Frank Capra.

Best original motion picture story — "Alexander's Ragtime Band," by Irving Berlin; "Angels With Dirty Faces," by Rowland Brown; "Blockade," by John Howard Lawson; "Boys Town," by Dore Schary and Eleanor Griffin; "Mad About Music," by Marcella Burke and Frederick Kohner, "Test Pilot," by Frank Wead.

Best screen play—Bernard Shaw (dialog and screen play) and W. P. Lipscomb, Cecil Lewis and Ian Dalyrimple for adaptation of "Pygmalion;" John Meehan and Dore Schare for "Boys Town;" Ian Dalyrimple, Frank Wead and Elizabeth Hill for "The Citadel;" Julius Epstein and Lenore Coffee for "Four Daughters;" and Robert Riskin for "You Can't Take It With You."

In Fresh Attempt To Mediate In Spanish War

LONDON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Spanish insurgent authorities were reliably reported today to have informed the British government their peace terms were "unconditional surrender" of the Spanish government.

This disclosure came on the heels of a report in authoritative quarters that Britain and France were making a fresh attempt to mediate the two and on-half year old war in Spain.

Informed sources said C. B. Jerram, assistant to the British agent at Burgos, insurgent capital, had called the attention of Generalissimo Franco's regime to a three-point peace offered by Dr. Juan Negrin, premier of the Spanish government.

The insurgents were said to have told Jerram flatly that these terms were "utterly unacceptable." One of Negrin's points called for an insurgent guarantee against foreign influence in Spain.

"The Spanish government apparently has left Spain," one informed source said, "and we do not know whether they are actually holding together."

Events in Spain were changing with "such kaleidoscopic rapidity," it was said, "that it is not possible to discuss at this minute any action which the British government might have taken in the past weekend."

Premier Juan Negrin and other ministers of the Spanish Republican regime have fled into France.

The first indications of mediation came Saturday night when it was reliably reported in the French-Spanish border region the Negrin government had made a tentative approach for British mediation at Burgos, insurgent capital.

Negrin's "three points" upon which these overtures were reported made, however, were so broad as to raise sharp doubt any agreement or even preliminary negotiation could be based on them—particularly in view of Insurgent Generalissimo Franco's advantageous military position.

There was not the slightest indication on what basis mediation now may be sought.

Negrin had asked, it was reported, a guarantee that Spain would be freed of foreign influence; establishment of a government desired by all the people and chosen through a plebiscite; and liquidation of the war without persecution to permit all Spaniards to join in reconstruction.

Rome press reports indicating that Italy might maintain her troops in Spain to help Franco police the nation after the war's end drew the statement in London that officials had "no official information" such would be the case.

Program Before High Point P. T. A.

High Point P. T. A. held its regular meeting January 29. The meeting was opened by singing two songs, America and Juanita. After the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. L. C. Green, a short business session was held.

A program was presented by Mrs. James Green, assisted by Mrs. Henry Lamm and Mrs. Virgil Alderman.

Song—"Take Joy Home," by Miss Lewis, accompanied by Miss Fox.

Dr. G. H. Abney gave a very interesting talk on the care of teeth of today.

Songs—"Silver Haired Daddy of Mine," "She'll Be Coming Round the Mountain." The Old Maid song by Charley Allcorn playing his own accompaniment on the guitar.

The social committee served sandwiches and coffee.

The next meeting will be held February 24.

Over Thousand Jobless Claims

During the month of January, a total of 1,009 unemployed workers filed claims for unemployment compensation through the district office of the Missouri state employment service, located at 500 South Ohio avenue, Sedalia, according to F. M. Henry, manager. Of these 880 were residents of Sedalia and Pettis county. The balance were from Johnson, Henry, Morgan, Benton, and Hickory counties.

Only 7% of the claimants were declared ineligible through lack of insured wage credits. This means that more than 800 local persons will receive weekly benefits up to $15 per week, for a maximum of 12 weeks, during the period of their total unemployment.

Mr. Henry states that any unemployed person who worked during the first nine months of 1938, for an employer of eight or more, is invited to call and file a claim. Claims are also accepted from those who worked in other states. The local office is open daily from 8:30 a. m., to 5 p. m., except on Saturday, when the closing hour is noon.

Return From South

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Wesner, 1620 South Beacon avenue, returned Sunday night from an automobile vacation trip through the South. They visited in Tulsa, Okla. San Antonio, Texas, several interesting places in old Mexico, New Orleans, La., Biloxi, Miss, Mobile, Ala., Birmingham, Ala., Pensacola Fla. and returned home by way of Nashville Tenn., where they went through Andrew Jackson's home. They were gone almost three weeks.

Senate Turns Down Roberts To Be Judge

Was Rejected By A Vote of 72 to 9 Today

Glass and Byrd Raised Objection

May Prompt A Letter From The President

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—The Senate rejected today President Roosevelt's nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to be a Virginia federal judge. Senators Glass and Byrd, Virginia Democrats, had objected to the appointment.

The vote refusing confirmation was 72 to 9.

President Roosevelt told a press conference Friday that if the nomination was rejected, he would write a letter to Roberts which would be right interesting.

White House officials said Mr. Roosevelt might prepare the letter today. When written, they said, it will be made public at the White House.

Senator Glass, after the overwhelming vote against Roberts, was asked if it pleased him.

"Well," he drawled, "I think it should have been unanimous."

The Senate judiciary committee had disapproved the nomination by a vote of 15 to 3.

Glass and Byrd testified before the committee that the nomination was "personally offensive" to them.

Critical On Use Of State Patrol For Escorts

Grand Jury Is Charged To Make Inquiry

Probe Is Started In Cole County

Judge Sevier Cites Statutes As To Duties

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6—Circuit Judge Nike G. Sevier charged a Cole County grand jury today to investigate "a flagrant unlawful use of the highway patrol as herald escorts and rear guards for distinguished state officers."

Sevier also told the jurors the highway patrol was without statutory authority when it gathered slot machine evidence which played a major part in the still-pending ouster action against Carl F. Wymore, Cole county prosecutor.

Attorney General Roy McKittrick filed the ouster against Wymore, charging he had failed to prosecute slot machine operators after evidence of their existence had been offered him by highway patrolmen.

Much of the charge, however, was directed at what Judge Sevier termed unlawful use of highway patrol for personal services to high state officials. He called no one by name but declared:

"The governor of Missouri has inherited a most unique organization, expertly officered and competently manned by the flower of Missouri's manhood, the highway patrol, dedicated so says the statute, 'to police of the highways, regulate traffic, enforce the laws relating to x x x vehicles' x x x to accomplish which laudable ends they 'shall have the powers vested in peace officers x x x to arrest any person'."

Two highway patrolmen were detached from regular duty last month and assigned to the governor's payroll during the investigation of criminal activities in Kansas City. Superintendent B. Marvin Castell said Gov. Lloyd C. Stark had asked the assignment of the patrolmen as special investigators and Casteel told the governor such work could not be done in the regular line of duty. Subsequently the troopers were given leaves of absence.

Powerful Subpoena Power

Judge Sevier pointedly told the jury "there is no servant or dignitary of this state beyond your subpoena," and continued:

"The court x x recommends that you investigate the unlawful use of the patrol as herald escorts and rear guards for distinguished state officers at luncheons, football games and sports, fishing expeditions and shopping pleasure jaunts in state-owned automobiles x x x.

"Use your fullest powers in investigating the use of the patrol and state property, returning into this court a special report of your finding and action."
